Granite City firefighters, aided by the remote-controlled Tele-Squirt (at top), work to control a fire at Triangle Metallurgical Inc., a scrap metal recovery firm at 2720 Missouri Ave., Tuesday night. Cause of the blaze, first reported at 6:40 p.m., is yet undetermined and damage estimates are not available. Miofsky blasts school board

In a prepared statement read before the Granite City School Board Tuesday night, Board Member Tom Miofsky blasted the board for decisions that he termed as "mechanical" and "hip shooting."

Miofsky, who has been on the board for more than nine years, said that his experiences during the past 12 months have been both "frustrating and disappointing." He said he has never seen the board and staff in such "disarray."

MIOFSKY SAID his frustration has resulted from the "few" discussions that have occurred by the board as a whole. "Discussion, when it does take place, is mechanical," he said. "What disturbs me and should be a concern to everyone in this district is the fact that a minor majority believe that they have the correct prescription for remedying the ills of this district."

He said that under the present circumstances, any opinions that do not conform to the majority's thinking are labeled as "poor."

"The...most suitable response to those statements is 'Hog wash!'" decisions over the past six months that he found to be unsettling. "In March of 1984, Member Kelly Hogan, without any discussion with the board, made a sweeping motion to restructure the administration—the results of which were to save us $150,000 to $155,000," he said.

"JULY 6, A meeting that was scheduled only tentatively and not for the purpose of personnel, the superintendent (B.J. Davis) was fired. Very little money has been saved by the hip-shooting decision making of a few, but instead more disorder has resulted."

Miofsky said he is not arguing whether or not the decisions were necessary, but he was questioning the manner, ethics and timing of the decisions. Hogan continues to blame past boards for "lack of good decisions, poor management decisions at proper times, waste of valuable time" and "past boards' loss of credibility." He said, "The best and most suitable response to those statements is 'hog wash.'"

He said that the condition of the school district cannot be solely attributed to past school boards. "If any one person or group did not respond to the citizens of Granite and the needs of the educational system, it was our legislatures, governor and the state house and Senate," he said. "They only constrained us more."

MIOFSKY OUTLINED governmental reductions in state funding for education, reductions in state aid, rising inflation and declining population as variables over which the local board has no control.

He then cited a "three phase action plan" that was adopted by the board in 1978 to address future problems. (Continued on Page 6)

Mehelic is convicted of misconduct charge

By PAT HAY LUTZ
for the Press-Record

After only two hours of deliberation following a one-day trial, a jury of seven men and five women in Madison County Circuit Court found Nameless Township Highway Commissioner Frank Mehelic guilty on one count of official misconduct. He could be sentenced to one to three years in prison.

Mehelic was convicted of "exceeding his scope of authority" by ordering Harold "Ray" Denson, a former mechanic for the township, to work on Mehelic's personal car during working hours.

MEHELIC, WHO has been highway commissioner for nearly eight years, must resign from that position after he is sentenced in 30 days unless he appeals the conviction. State statutes call for public officials to resign after a felony conviction, but defense attorneys plan to argue that case law indicates the term "conviction" applies only after all appeals are exhausted. "That's certainly what we will argue," said Jim Wallis, one of the defense attorneys. It will be up to Associate Judge Edward Ferguson to rule on when Mehelic must resign. Judge Ferguson presided at Mehelic's trial and will impose sentence.

Eight employees, and former employees of the township and road crew testified against Mehelic during Tuesday's proceedings, telling the jury that they had seen Denson working on the car in the township garage over a two-day period in June 1981.

Denson, whose job was abolished on Sept. 30, 1983, testified that Mehelic brought a newly purchased 1979 Chevrolet Impala into the garage and demanded that Denson fix the car, which Mehelic said had been "throwing smoke" and burning oil.

DENSON TESTIFIED that he questioned Mehelic on the appropriateness of working on Mehelic's personal car and was told, "I am the dictator. I'm the highway commissioner and you do what I say. If you don't do it, I'll find somebody out on the street who will."

Denson said he spent two days working on the car, changing the oil and oil filter, flushing out the engine, installing a new battery and replacing spark plugs at Mehelic's direction, but was unable to eliminate the problem because the engine required extensive valve work.

The cost of the car parts was charged to the township, Denson testified.

DENSON'S WIFE, Shirley, the

former dispatcher for the highway department, testified that Mehelic had ordered her husband to do the work and that she had seen him working on the car for two days. She also told the jury that she had heard Mehelic refer to himself as a "dictator," and threaten her husband "if he refused to perform the work."

When Denson was subpoenaed to testify before a grand jury in March 1983, Mehelic told him "to take the

Pay hikes in Madison may result from heated meeting

By DONNA KIMBRO
of the Press-Record

A relatively routine meeting of the Madison City Council, Tuesday night, became more like a scene from a movie being filmed.

The plot was an angry mayor trying to keep a persistent attorney from presenting his case, while an overflow crowd of spectators watched and television and press cameras recorded the events.

ALDERMAN THOMAS Gordon apparently expected a quiet response and acceptance when, as head of the financial committee, he recommended that all city employees be given a six percent salary increase, retroactive to May 1.

It was thought that the raises had been worked out even though, at earlier meetings, the mayor and aldermen agreed the city's financial situation did not warrant a raise for anyone because the funds were just not available.

After Tuesday night's session, Mayor Mike Sasysk, during a television interview, confirmed the raises will become effective upon passage of the city budget and be retroactive to May 1.

Officer hired; police lawyer ignored by mayor

ALDERMAN ROBERT Grieve was given the floor at one point in the meeting and asked that Thomas Sonnenborn, attorney for the Police Benevolent & Protective Association Unit 110, be given an opportunity to speak.

Mayor Sasysk asked for what reason and, when told the lawyer wanted to talk about the police officers' negotiations, Sasysk said, "He's not recognized as the negotiator for the police. Your motion is out of order," and immediately called for a motion to adjourn the meeting.

However, Mayor Sasysk, prior to Grieve's request, did recognize Zella Niehaus, a resident of Madison, and allowed her to address the council.

On behalf of the Madison Ladies Democratic Club, Mrs. Niehaus presented the city with a portrait of Mayor Sasysk. It was unveiled on the wall behind the mayor where a portrait of the late Mayor Steven Maeras has been displayed. Sasysk quickly said that Mr. Maeras' picture will be rehanging in its former place.

WHEN SONNEBORN subsequently tried to speak to the aldermen, Sasysk vehemently said, "I have the gavel now and when you have it in your hand, you can speak."

"I will be back," Sonnenborn told the mayor and Sasysk retaliated with, "Fine. I am here 86 days a year."

Aldermen William Gushleff spoke to the attorney and added, "Bring some money then (apparently referring to funding raises for the officers)."

THE SPRINGFIELD attorney persisted when the session was adjourned and tried to address the councilmen, but was ignored again, as was Alderman Donald Garrett, who asked to be recognized by the mayor to speak, but Sasysk immediately adjourned the meeting and would not allow Garrett to speak.

Later, during an interview, Garrett said he also was going to School bond rate of 50 cents eyed

By SUSAN SIGNAIGO-WEICH
of the Press-Record

An estimated cost per taxpayer for the proposed $6.6 million working cash fund bond issue was presented to members of the Granite City School Board Tuesday night.

According to an outline prepared by Don M. Lindberg, a consultant for the district, a 10-year bond issue would cost homeowners 50 cents per hundred dollars of assessed value (one third of fair market value) a year. Applying this figure to home values, the cost would be $50 a year for a $30,000 home, $75 a year for a

New director for Head Start program

Family Service and Visiting Nurse Association has selected Marilyn Spears Bryant as director of the Head Start Program for Madison County. The decision to hire Mrs. Bryant was the result of an extensive search throughout the St. Louis metropolitan area for the most qualified person.

"The screening process was extremely thorough," said Paul

Lauschke, board president. "It included an initial screening interview, a group interview with management staff, and a final interview with key board members. Mrs. Bryant was clearly the most qualified candidate," he said.

She was one of four finalists out of seven applicants. "Not only will Mrs. Bryant make a fine project director, but she also will make a great addition to our management team," said Kathleen Fillo Rogers, executive director. "We are most fortunate to find an administrator with such a wide range of experience in Head Start."

Mrs. Bryant comes to the Agency with more than 10 years experience in Head Start. Her experience includes both the role of parent and professional. She has served as education and training coordinator, handicapped coordinator and regional coordinator for handicapped services. As a consultant for Region 9, she has been both a monitor and trainer with skills in program management, grant application and proposal writing, curriculum development and program evaluation.

Mrs. Bryant has a bachelor's degree in sociology from Fontbonne College and a master's degree in special education from the University of California.

Mrs. Bryant replaces Carol Werner, director of the program the last four years. Mrs. Werner, who kept the program from folding dur-

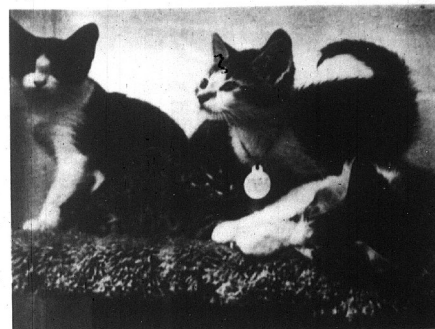

FIGHT ENDS IN CHARGES AGAINST VENICE MAN

Clarence C. Williams Sr., 34, of 1225 rear Calhoun Ave., Venice, was charged with disorderly conduct and resisting arrest by police last weekend after neighbors complained that he had been arguing with Cheryl Williams for several hours.

When police arrived, Williams became loud and abusive toward officers and threatened to shoot them if they didn't get off his property. When Williams was taken into custody, he pushed and shoved officers and force had to be used to place him in the squad car. He was released on $200 cash bond.

Sources confirmed that Mrs. Werner was one of the four finalists for the position.

DID YOU KNOW?

Nail wrapping is perhaps the most recent nail care technique, and it is also one of the most effective. Wrapping gives strength to weak nails, repairs a broken nail, and helps those that flake and or split easily.

While using paper or fabric to wrap or repair nails can have benefits, there are many drawbacks. Fabric or paper wrapping can be very messy and time consuming when attempted at home. The process is also very hard to do and even harder to hide. If you decide to go to a salon and have someone else wrap your nails, you can expect to pay around $30 or more initially.

Why not save money, time and hassles by using a liquid wrap product, such as Insee Mends Split Nails or Silk Wrap. These products are very easy to apply, and are equally as effective as traditional wraps. In fact, Mends Split Nails actually contains nylon fibers, and Silk Wrap contains silk.

Law enforcement work earns trio recognition

Three area individuals were recently honored by the Illinois Department of Law Enforcement for their distinguished service to the police profession.

Madison County State's Attorney Don Weber, Rape and Sexual Abuse Care Center at SIUE, director Pamela Klein, Division of Criminal Investigation Special Agent Victor Morris each received awards at a ceremony honoring special achievements in the law enforcement field.

STATE Law enforcement officials said Weber's prosecution of the Richard Van Hook case placed his career and future in jeopardy.

On Feb. 17, 1983, after eight hours of deliberation, the defendant was found guilty, due in part to Weber's "dedication and steadfast decision to prosecute the defendant," officials said.

Weber also was recognized for his work in the homicide investigation of the Karla Brown case — the bite mark case which ultimately resulted in a 75-year sentence for the defendant.

PAMELA KLEIN was cited for assisting with an indecent liberties with a child case through her counseling and interviews.

Morris was recognized for his surveillance of a fugitive and later risking his life during a high-speed chase which ended with a shooting during the suspect's arrest in a shopping mall parking lot.

Bi-State paint plan conflicts with Illinois marketing plans

By PAUL GUSE

A decision by the Bi-State Development Agency to paint lightning bolts on the sides of all 800 of its buses has angered members of the Madison and St. Clair County transit boards, and may result in a completely different paint job for buses serving Illinois routes.

Members of the Madison County Transit Board first learned about Bi-State's new marketing efforts last week from a newspaper passed around at a special meeting called to discuss the board's marketing efforts.

"THIS IS SOMETHING that directly affects our marketing program, and they drop this on us without our input," Madison County Transit Board chairman William Haine told reporters.

Haine said the board does not want to be involved in the "lightning bolt" program, and will ask the Illinois commissioners on the Bi-State board to delete the Madison County district from the program.

"We don't know much about the program, and we don't want to be involved in it because it will be bungled," said Haine. "It is a very poor idea, in my opinion."

"This shows a complete lack of good faith on their (Bi-State's) part, and a complete lack of competence. It raises a lot of old questions about our relationship with Bi-State," Haine said.

Haine said he has learned through Madison County Transit District Manager Rudy Johnson that the St. Clair County Transit District has agreed to pull out of Bi-State's marketing plan, and is equally angry about the lack of information given to the districts.

Haine said the board for a year has been working on adopting the logo which the board had designed for the Alton "Bustle" express routes, which features a hopping rabbit in a stylized design. The word "Alton" would be deleted from the logo.

"This is something we've been moving slowly, cautiously, on, so we wouldn't be wasting money," Haine said.

The logo also would be adopted by the St. Clair County Transit Board for buses operating in that county, according to Haine.

Haine said Bi-State's "lightning bolt" plan is a misconceived idea. "They are putting the cart before the horse," Haine said. "They are painting buses without improving bus service," Haine said.

"THIS HAS BEEN the hallmark of Bi-State. Things that are not very good are announced with a lot of hoopla," Haine said. "Decisions are made in vacuums."

"Our intent is not to direct people just to the buses but to have a comprehensive plan to direct people's attention to the asset of the bus system," Haine said.

"If people view Bi-State as an asset, we have done our job mandated by law," he said. The transit district voted last week to allocate $60,000 for the remainder of the 1984 fiscal year, which ends in January, for a marketing and advertising plan to be designed by Inlandesign Group of Edwardsville. This plan would include design of the Illinois route buses.

Transit District Manager Rudy Johnson said the district will hire a part-time marketing assistant in the near future to help with the marketing effort. Johnson suggested to the board that an inventory of bus-stop signs and a study of the effectiveness of Bi-State's marketing program be initiated.

Venice parks have new budget

Venice Park Board members last week approved the 1984-85 annual budget, which projects a deficiency of approximately $1,274 in the general corporate fund. Board President Arnold Johnson dismissed the potential deficiency, saying the excessive expenses incurred last year will not happen again this year. Last year's deficiency totaled $10,370.

Total general corporate funds allocated for this year are $48,436 compared to $36,715 during 1983-84. All other funds show no deficiency projections.

Commissioner John Henry Williams also "clarified" the board's alleged denial of a request from the Venice Lions Club to conduct a carnival during early July. Telling board members that "several persons" had accused the board of refusing the Lions Club, Rev. Williams stated that no official action had been taken on the request.

"We just discussed the carnival, we didn't say 'no' to anyone," Williams said. "We called a special meeting to discuss the proposal, but the Lions Club went to the (Venice) school board and told them that we had denied them the night before the special meeting. I just want everybody to know that we didn't deny them, we just discussed it," he said. Commissioner Earl Hogan, who is president of the Lions Club, apologized for the rumors and requested a special meeting to discuss a four-day carnival to be conducted over the Labor Day weekend. Johnson agreed to hold a special meeting before the end of July.

Discuss public issues openly

"Freedom of speech" is an important idea in our free society but has, in some cases with good reason, some restrictions.

For instance, no one is free to yell "Fire!" in a crowded movie theater or public place. The risk of panic and serious injury or death outweighs freedom of speech at that point.

We are not sure if Madison Mayor Mike Sasyk thought the Springfield attorney for the city's police was going to yell "Fire!" in the crowded city council meeting chamber Tuesday night, but we do not think he had that in mind. We feel he should be heard.

Only through open and honest discussions can the facts be brought out and, armed with the facts, the people of Madison can let the city officials who represent them know how the taxpayers feel about supporting raises for policemen and about hiring more officers to protect them.

In a statement issued by the police officers Wednesday, it was pointed out that an officer with seven years on the Madison Police Department receives $7.91 per hour. Custodians in the Madison School District earn more than $10 an hour. Something is amiss.

With free and open discussions, the citizens could decide whether police are underpaid or custodians are overpaid or the job custodians do is more valuable than the job police do.

We certainly feel the police, who have specialized training and many of who have associate and bachelor's degrees, deserve to make more than custodians. A total of $7.91 per hour is a poor reward for an officer who risks his life each day to protect the citizens.

We are glad that the Madison police are, apparently, going to get a raise. That is a good move.

However, we remain concerned when the mayor, with an iron gavel, shuts off all public discussion on such important issues. Elected officials are elected to represent the people. We think the people would like to know something about the facts, figures and thought processes that go into the governmental decisions that affect their lives.

We have tried to make it clear on several occasions that the Press-Record will always accept responses from officials to Forum letters and will make every effort to put the responses in the very next edition of the paper, but to run the Forum letters along side with their responses would, in our opinion, discourage many letter writers who have valuable ideas and feelings to express.

We hope future objections to Forum letters will be clearly labeled as such, as will our editorials. We receive few objections to staff-written "articles," which are only supposed to mirror what is happening, not to comment or to take sides.

again to convince us not to write articles critical of the city administration without consulting him. We work for our readers, the vast majority of which are citizens. We defend their right to object to what their governmental officials do, without the fear that their objections will seem trivial when printed side-by-side with the written response of a professional politician.

We have tried to make it clear on several occasions that the Press-Record will always accept responses from officials to Forum letters and will make every effort to put the responses in the very next edition of the paper, but to run the Forum letters along side with their responses would, in our opinion, discourage many letter writers who have valuable ideas and feelings to express.

We hope future objections to Forum letters will be clearly labeled as such, as will our editorials. We receive few objections to staff-written "articles," which are only supposed to mirror what is happening, not to comment or to take sides.

Taking criticism for others

While on the subject of free and open discussions at the Madison City Council, we support Mayor Sasyk's right to disagree with a policy of this newspaper to print Forum members without consulting him for his permission or response.

It has been an area of long-standing dispute which we do not enjoy, but which we defend after long hours of study and evaluation.

At numerous city council meetings, Sasyk has persisted in blasting the Press-Record for printing "articles" opposing the city administration without consulting him. We have tried on several occasions, in person and in editorials, to point out to the mayor that there is a difference between a newspaper "article" written by the Press-Record staff, and a "Forum letter," written by a citizen.

We are fairly certain that his objections at Tuesday night's city council meeting were in response to a former policeman's Forum letter, but the mayor made it sound as though he has tried time and time

Objects to long wait in emergency room

To the Editor:
Recently I had an accident and went to SEMC emergency room for precautionary measures. I sat for one half hour before a nurse came and cleaned a damaged area, took my temperature and checked my blood pressure.

I sat in the area for another half hour before the doctor examined me and was told I was alright, but would take X-rays.

I sat in a waiting room and watched TV for another hour before a nurse came in and asked me what I was waiting for and I told her X-rays.

After another half hour, I went to X-ray and returned to the waiting room and watched more TV. Finally, after three and a half hours, I was told I could go home.

I sat in the examining room for approximately one-half hour, watched TV for two hours, and was sent a bill for $319, plus $46 for X-rays.

When I went to the emergency room, there were only two additional patients. When I left, they had added only three more patients. So I wasn't as if they were so busy. As I sat there, I observed three women workers and two security guards sitting around shooting the bull, and not for a short time either. No wonder I was charged $319 for a half hour work.

With all the articles in the paper about SEMC laying off and trying to improve efficiency, shouldn't the management try to see what's going on after 5 o'clock?

I would like to commend the X-ray department. Now there was speed and efficiency.

Answers questions about K of C opposition

Some of the residents of Norwood Drive got together after one resident received an anonymous letter and wrote this letter to reply and express their views on the Knights of Columbus proposal to take over the vacant Johnson School.

To the Editor:

Let us try and answer pending questions the best we can.

1 - Probably you are unaware of the services made possible by the Knights.

We are very aware of these wonderful services. One resident said her niece attends the OATs; another said she was raised, fed, and clothed by the Knights. She said she doesn't know where she would be today if it wasn't for them.

2 - What about the people and buses who picked up and dropped off kids? Would you rather have people and buses picking up kids between the hours of 7:30 a.m. and 4:30 p.m. or would you rather have hundreds of cars coming and going between the hours of 5 p.m. and 3 a.m.? And face it 90 percent of the people will consume alcohol. Tell me which you would prefer.

3 - A Knights of Columbus Hall would improve the value of your property and encourage more people to see your lovely area? We've been told by a few lawyers and real estate salesmen that our property value will drop.

4 - If you drive off the Knights, the school will become another useless, empty, vandalized building. We can't help that. When we see trouble and there, we will call the law.

5 - The Knights were considering a daytime child care center. Then let them open one, but leave it during the day, and I know I won't have to worry if some drunken driver is going to run down one of my kids.

6 - I hope it's not hatred for Catholics behind your motives. My husband is Catholic, and so are my neighbors and I'm sure we're not the only Catholics in this neighborhood fighting for our rights. This is a nice quiet neighborhood, even though we have narrow streets, no sewers and no sidewalks. We all like our neighborhood nice and quiet.

Let the K of C. Hall be an asset to you, let them in your back yard.

There will be another public meeting on Saturday, July 21.

Please come by at 1371 Norwood Drive.

GLAD MRS. FERRARO WAS PICKED BY MONDALE

To the Editor:
I am glad to hear that Walter Mondale has chosen Geraldine Ferraro as his running mate for the White House. I think that she will do well as vice-president of the United States of America.

Although there might be a lot of male chauvinistic pigs out there who might think different, I think she has what it takes to be the vice-president, maybe even president one day.

She seems to me to be a very smart lady and I don't think people should judge the lady just because she's a woman.

POW-MIA Week

In observance of National POW-MIA Week, Granite City residents were asked what they believe the federal government should do, if anything, to determine the status of 2,489 Vietnam War American servicemen still listed as missing in action. Their comments follow:

Florence Hagnauer, Granite City
"I think we should bring them back. I think we should negotiate, rather than use military force. I don't like violence."

Jennifer Watson, Granite City
"I think we should take action. My brother-in-law was in Vietnam and he knows of people missing. I think there should be some sort of government fund to find these people and bring them back."

Bill Worthen, Granite City
"There never should have been a political war. The war was not a war to be won. We should try to get them back, but I don't know how we'd know if they're dead or alive."

Joseph M. Bosich, Granite City
"There are many missing. I know that. I imagine some are buried in the jungles. Some may have been taken prisoner and are being used as laborers. If we make an effort to get them back, we commit ourselves to get involved with our adversary. I don't know if the people of the United States want that."

Feels bonds unnecessary for a new pool

To the Editor:
In regards to your recent article on the new $1.3 million swimming pool, I counted a total of 156 people in favor, from the three hearings, per your paper. I do not consider that a mandate to spend $1.3 million of the taxpayers' money on something most won't use.

It would seem that whom-ever got the idea to spend this much money would have also the foresight to know that the taxpayers in Granite do not want a bond issue of any type.

It is my understanding that in 1979 the total receipts of the park district were approximately $700,000. In 1984 they are approaching well over $1 million. This is due to the "County Multipliers" and the park district itself raising its tax base per a hearing.

What is wrong with using this excess money that is being dumped in to the till, and have your swimming pool? I'm sure if the district would save this money for a year, in good faith, any bank in the area would finance the balance on a rent-to-buy deal.

With everyone I've talked to, it is not that the people don't want a swimming pool, it's just that no one can see how, with all the increased revenue, the park district still needs more and more money.

I suggest that the board cut off a little here and a little there. Then, with the $60,000 they save by not repairing the old pool each year, could easily pay for a new pool, themselves and not be a burden on the taxpayers.

POW/MIA issue needs public attention

To the Editor:
The week of July 15 to 21 has been set aside as National POW/MIA Week. Friday, July 20, has been established by the Congress and proclaimed by the president as National POW/MIA Recognition Day. A wreath-laying ceremony, color guard, speakers, a proclamation from the president and key speaker, Jack Mondarte National Association of Concerned Veterans, president, will be at Jefferson Barracks Medical Center that day, at 10 a.m. Memorial services will be at the Soldiers' Memorial, 1315 Chestnut St. Louis, at 2 p.m. Scott Air Force Base will be conducting a wreath-laying ceremony at 10 a.m.

The POW/MIA issue seems to have been put aside, but it is far from being over. Public awareness is the key to the release of the remaining 2,489 soldiers and civilians still missing and/or imprisoned in Vietnam. Activities are increasing almost daily and the results are evident. Vietnamese officials have repeatedly expressed curiosity at the rationale of the American people for such strong interest in this issue, particularly when "only" 3 to 4 percent of those who served are still missing in Southeast Asia.

The National League of Families is asking for support through letters and petitions from the American people to their Congressmen and the Vietnamese government, asking for the release of the missing men. On Memorial Day, May 28, the remains of a Vietnam Era unknown were interred at Arlington National Cemetery. President Reagan delivered the message and awarded the Medal of Honor to the unknown. The president's remarks included some of the following: "We must remember that we cannot today—as much as some might want to—close this chapter in our history. For the war in Southeast Asia still haunts a small but brave group of Americans, the families of those still missing in the Vietnam conflict. They live day and night with uncertainty, with emptiness, with a void we cannot fathom."

On July 17, 1984, Hanoturnover to the United States eight remains. The families involved have already waited far too many years. Three of the remains were known to be available since December 1980 and the other five since February 1984.

"Who cares?" some say. Everyone should be working for their release. What if it was your son or father or brother? Wouldn't you want to know if they were living or dead? There are two families in Granite City, two in E. St. Louis and one in Collinsville who still do not know where their loved ones are. It seems no one in this area ever mentions the POW or MIA any more. It's time that these brave men who gave their lives, and who are still giving, should be recognized and brought back to where they belong on U.S. soil.

Individual efforts, no matter how small, are extremely important to the success of this mission. Public awareness must be raised to pressure the Vietnamese government to return these men to us. Write to our senators and representatives. Tell them of your support of this issue. Let them know that you want the missing men back, dead or alive.

URGES LIGHTING CANDLES TO BRING POW/MIAS HOME

To the Editor:
July 20, 1984, has been set aside by Congressional Resolution and Presidential Proclamation as POW/MIA Day. The Department of Illinois Veterans of Foreign Wars of the United States is sponsoring a special program on July 20 and 21 at the DuPage County Fairgrounds.

VFW Posts and citizens of Illinois will be lighting 2,481 twenty-four hour candles in the fairgrounds auditorium, each candle representing one of the 2,481 persons still unaccounted for from the war in Southeast Asia.

If unable to attend the 24-hour vigil, the Department of Illinois Veterans of Foreign Wars of the United States is encouraging citizens of Illinois to light a candle and place it in a window on the night of Friday, July 20. This was once a general practice on farms and ranches in the old west where the candlelight could guide someone to shelter and safety.

Light a candle on July 20 as a sign of hope and tribute to those who have endured so much for so long.

Bi-State unveils 'new look' for buses

The Bi-State Transit division of the Bi-State Development Agency unveiled a new bus design and color scheme, new signage system and new advertising theme Monday.

The new look, sound and personality for Bi-State reflects months of planning and research including surveys of current riders and non-riders. Bi-State officials said. Among the most frequently requested improvements to the bus system were: improvement of the signage system to provide more information "on the street," clean, mechanically-reliable buses and increased service.

While it is difficult to show visibly the effort being made to improve the frequency and efficiency of routing now taking place through the "Transit Action Plan," noted Michael H. Setzer, general manager of transit, "we are able to display our new bus design and paint scheme, which is designed to improve the overall image of the bus fleet through exterior and interior cleanliness."

"The color scheme, red and white with black, incorporates the colors of the St. Louis metropolitan area. This is our visual statement that we are determined to improve our service in the same way our metropolitan area has improved — with exciting prospects for the future," he said.

To improve on-street signage, Bi-State has expanded its current signage system. "Bus Stop" signs will be replaced with graphically-dominant "Bus Start" signs that are visible on the streets from greater distances. "Board Bus Here" signs will be replaced with signs that list the bus lines that stop at each point.

This signage system, which initially will be installed only in the downtown St. Louis area to test public acceptance, is just the beginning of a system that will include informational kiosks, a manned information office and a downtown route map in bus shelters," Setzer stated.

Madison man hurt at service station

David Griggs, 34, of 1014 rear College St., Venice, sustained an injury at 12:05 a.m. Tuesday when struck by a vehicle while standing next to the cashier's building at the Sonic Service Station, 1817 Madison Ave.

Griggs was paying for gasoline he had purchased at the self-service station when a pickup truck, occupied by two men, was driven between the building and another car, striking Griggs' left side and knocking him against the building, reports stated.

Several patrons yelled at the pickup driver, who briefly stopped the truck and a passenger got out of the vehicle. The passenger allegedly yelled several obscenities, got back into the truck which left the station, heading north on Madison Avenue.

The vehicle was located at 24th Street and Washington Avenue and the driver, Keith A. Thompson, 31, of 3226 Westchester Drive, was returned to the service station and reportedly identified.

Thompson was charged with leaving the scene of an accident with an injury. He was released upon Phegley declined to pursue extradition proceedings through St. Clair County and was brought here. Bond on the charges was set at $502.

Pontoon police charge man with incest

A 38-year-old man listed as having addresses in both Pontoon Beach and Venice has been sentenced to serve five years in prison after pleading guilty to a charge of incest.

According to Pontoon Beach Lieutenant Michael Goodman, acting police chief while Chet Ballow is vacationing, the act was reported to police Monday, July 9, by the accused's 16-year-old daughter.

According to the girl, her father has been fondling her since she was 7 and having intercourse with her for the last three years.

Listed as a runaway since June 21, the victim surfaced last week when she appeared at that village's police department to file the report.

Three days after the girl reported the incident to police, the department telephoned the girl's father to inform him of the charges.

Four days after that, Monday, July 16, officers escorted the father to Edwardsville for a hearing and Circuit Judge P. J. O'Neill accepted a guilty plea and sentenced him to serve five years in prison.

The victim, her mother and the four other children in the family were sent to the Oasis in Alton, a home for victims of domestic violence.

To protect the reputation of the victim, the name of the man charged is being withheld.

$45,000 home and $100 a year for a $60,000 home.

IF THE DISTRICT decides to implement a 15-year bond issue, the cost per hundred dollars of assessed valuation would drop to 40 cents. This would amount to $40 a year for a $30,000 home, $60 a year for a $45,000 home and $80 a year for a $60,000 home.

The district passed a resolution at a meeting last month seeking the $6.6 million bond issue. The revenue from the bonds would allow the district to establish a working cash fund that should prevent it from short-term borrowing in the future.

Lindberg told board members that the establishment of a working cash fund would be advantageous to the district because it would allow the district to borrow money from its own reserves while waiting for tax revenues to come in. When the district receives the tax money, it would pay back the working cash fund.

LINDBERG SAID the district would be able to use the money gained from interest on the $6.6 million in the future, for whatever projects or supplies are deemed necessary for the district.

School Board President David Partney said that he feels a 10-year bond issue would be preferable to the district. He said the cents per hundred dollars of assessed valuation, if broken down daily (on a $45,000 home) would amount to 21 cents per day. "If the residents think about it, all they would have to do would be to skip a bottle of soda a day and we'd (the school district) get out of this jam," he said.

Partney said he is aware that some citizens have started a petition drive to place the bond issue on a referendum. One-tenth of the registered voters' signatures (2,588 signatures) are necessary for a referendum vote to be necessary.

"I THINK A lot of misperceptions about the bond issue are circulating with the petition," he contended.

"I am in the process of getting together a press release that will urge the citizens not bring this to a vote. They have to understand that the district will be in a dire financial situation if it does not get the bond issue," he said.

Board Member Dewey Melton said he is not sure of the exact figures of the district's indebtedness and would like to have those figures as soon as possible, so that he could be more knowledgeable on the topic.

"PROBABLY EACH of us, as board members, knows that the district is in need, but I want to be able to back those feelings up to the public," Melton said. "The sooner the board gets the figures, the sooner we can articulate the need to the public."

Members of the board set up a special meeting Monday at 7 p.m. to review the district's cash flow charts for the previous year.

STOLEN CAR IS FOUND IN PONTIAC

Pontiac Beach Police recovered a stolen vehicle in the village Tuesday which was reported stolen July 2 from Edwardsville.

The car, a 1976 Mercury Marquis, was reported stolen from the Ronald Bechorski residence of rural Edwardsville.

The car was recovered in the 4000 block of Kathy Drive. There were no arrests.

TAKE ITEMS FROM YARD

A 27,000 BTU air conditioner worth $150, two truck tires worth $100 and three bags of aluminum cans worth $15 were stolen from the front yard at 2040 Grand Ave. It was reported by Meredith Fassold at 6:30 p.m. Tuesday.

News notes

The Illinois State Board of Education has voted to raise the compulsory attendance age for schools to 18. The action will serve as a recommendation to the General Assembly, which would have to act on it. Students 16 and older, who now may quit school without parental permission, would need such permission to leave the regular school curriculum and attend optional educational programs.

President Ronald Reagan signed legislation Tuesday which would impose federal sanctions against states who do not raise their drinking age to 21 by Fiscal Year 1987. Twenty-seven states now have drinking ages younger than 21. The legislation would strip states of five percent of their interstate highway funds if they have not adopted the drinking age by FY 1987 and an additional 10 percent in FY 1988. It also provides financial incentives to encourage states to adopt mandatory drunk driving sentences.

Fort Kaskaskia State Historic Site, seven miles north of Chester in Randolph County, has reopened its facilities for camping vehicles. Tent camping, the only form permitted since the recreational vehicle area was closed eight years ago, will continue to be offered. Further information is available by calling 1-859-3741.

Governor James R. Thompson said Tuesday that he has signed a bill creating a Compensation Review Board to set salaries for legislators, constitutional officers, cabinet members, judges and other state officials. The speaker of the house, the Senate president and the House and Senate minority leaders will each appoint three members to the 12-member board. The bill also raises yearly office allowances for house members to $27,000 and for Senate members to $37,000 for home office expenses.

fifth." Denison also testified, "He told me that I was supposed to take the fifth or to tell them that I didn't remember (working on the car)." Denison said.

After Denison testified truthfully before the grand jury, Denison said, Mehelic came into the township garage and threatened his job. "He came in and said, 'Heads are going to roll,'" Denison told the jury.

Denison said that he was going to abolish his job.

BOTH DENISON and his wife were laid off on Sept. 30, 1983.

Senior citizens' van driver JoAnne Hargrove also testified that she had complained to Mehelic about the loss of the dispatcher's services and Mehelic told her, "I can't help it, Jo Jo. Those people are trying to put me in jail."

Six other employees also testified that they had seen Denison working on the car in the garage.

PART-TIME dogcatcher Thomas Boushaid told the jury that he had become angry with Mehelic when he saw Denison working on Mehelic's car.

"I asked him (Mehelic) why they could work on his car and not on the limb chopper," Boushaid testified. "He (Mehelic) told me it was none of my business."

Mehelic and his wife, Melba, were the only defense witnesses, and they both testified that Denison had offered to look at the car and that Mehelic had not demanded that he work for a week and then ask Denison to look at the car.

MRS. MEHELIC told the jury that she had asked her husband to let Denison look at the car before she purchased it and when Denison told her, "If you don't buy it, I will," she assumed that the car was a good buy.

"But it wasn't a very good car, was it?" Defense attorney John C. Hoff asked her, and she replied, "It was a very good car. The only thing wrong with it was the engine."

She said that she drove the car to work for a week and then asked Mehelic to have Denison look at it again to see why it was burning oil.

WHEN MEHELIC asked Denison what the problem might be, Mehelic testified, Denison suggested that he bring the car into the garage to look

"I guess they (the employees) saw the car in the garage," Mehelic told the jurors. "I brought it in, said 'Here it is,' and left. About 45 minutes later, he told me that it needed valve work and suggested a shop I could take it to."

Mehelic then took it to a professional mechanic's shop and picked it up later that evening.

blems. "Through all board deliberations and prior to any decisions reached on such matters as school closings, program alterations, etc., input was sought from staff and public forums provided for everyone to voice their opinions and concerns," he said. "It was only after thorough data and information was gathered did the board make a decision."

Miofsky said that the board members did not always agree on every issue but that consensus frequently was reached and decisions were eventually agreed upon.

"THIS DISTRICT HAS been in a state of turmoil since January," he said. "Decisions have been made by some shooting from the hip without adequate information or discussion by all."

He said he personally views the behavior of two board members as "a classic case study of greed for power and misguided leadership."

Strong leadership can share power — weak leadership cannot," he contended.

"In the past we have taken a participative and synergistic approach to solving problems. That is an approach to solving problems whereby the results that come from the body as a whole is greater than the sum of their efforts when acting independently."

"I PERCEIVE TOO much independent action, too much involvement by individual members in the day-to-day administration of this district. Administrators no longer make decisions that should be theirs to make," Miofsky contended. Miofsky said that when administrators fail in their responsibilities after being counseled by the board, they should be replaced. "But it is our responsibility to let him or her know what is expected," he said. "Poor performance, if it occurs, should not be a surprise."

testimony differed on the amount of time that elapsed between the time Denison worked on the car after the purchase and the amount of time Denison actually worked on the car.

Mrs. Mehelic also told jurors that she had driven the car to work on the days that Denison testified that he was working on it.

During cross examination, Mehelic told prosecuting attorney John Delaney that Denison was not being truthful about the incident.

"WOULD YOU SAY that Denison is lying?" Delaney asked, and Mehelic replied, "Well, I'll say one thing. He sure is pressing the truth."

Mehelic argued that the Denisons had been laid off along with five others because of "budgetary reasons," and not because they had testified before the grand jury.

Other highway department employees who testified during Tuesday's trial told the Press-Record that they expect to lose their jobs because of their testimony.

"We won't have jobs for long," one employee said on the 17th day to get rid of us, just like he did with Ray."

Mehelic still faces five more counts of official misconduct on charges of directing employees to perform personal work for him on township time, but a trial date has not been set on those charges.

He concluded by saying that he is "sick and tired" of what he has been reading in the newspapers and hearing on the streets. "I cannot serve the public as a whole with hidden agendas to accomplish the attitude that they (the board majority) know what is best for the future of the district without adequately analyzing what has taken place."

IN RESPONSE TO Miofsky's statement, Granite City School Board President David Partney said he does agree that the new board has made "sweeping" decisions. "I remember the board meeting on three occasions in one instance to resolve a problem. 'I remember sitting here on a Saturday, all day, because we could not get an agreement,'" he said. "In that instance, it came down to the wire and the majority did prevail — but only after we had three meetings."

There was no further comment by the board on Miofsky's statement.

How to save money on your grocery bills

Here are some important shopping tips

- Check specials in food store advertisements.
- Get to know the butcher and produce manager.
- Find out when deliveries of perishables are made and shop on those days. Fresher foods last longer and consequently, you'll waste less.
- Learn to estimate accurately the amounts of food needed. Keep a record of the amount of food you throw away in a week. It may alert you to ways you can reduce waste.
- For economy and variety, use eggs, dry beans, and peanut butter in place of meat some of the time. These foods provide protein and most other nutrients that meat supplies.

Madison Board considers middle school roof bids;

By SUSANNE INDELCATO
of the Press-Record

The Madison School Board Monday accepted a bid of $82,640 from Lakeside Roofing Co. of Ponton Beach to put a new roof on the A building at the Madison Middle School, Lakeside submitted the lowest of two bids to the board.

According to district Maintenance Supervisor Eldon Rhoads, Lakeside is one of few roofing companies that can install a Carlisle roof, which is a rubber sheet roof with a 300 percent elasticity, allowing the roof to "give and take" with the building.

FOR AN additional $24,700, Lakeside will install additional insulation to the roof. Rhoads indicated that if the board authorizes the insulation, the school district may get funds from the state for energy conservation efforts.

School Superintendent John Palchett said he would like to have the roof put on the middle school building before Oct. 1. Rhoads told the board that he supports a decision to contract with Lakeside Roofing Co. "Lakeside has given us good service in the past."

The School Board reached a $5,277 settlement in a 1980 lawsuit last month after suing the architect, contractor and subcontractor of the original roof, alleging that poor design and workmanship in the construction of the roof resulted in water leaking into insulation during construction. As a result, the suit said, the roof was never watertight and leaked consistently into classrooms in the A section of the Middle School.

THE ADDITIONAL funding for the new roof will come from insurance monies and other funds, according to Assistant Superintendent Wade James.

In other action, the board decided to solicit bids for the demolition of the old Dunbar School Annex, which sits in back of the school at Third and Jackson streets. Last month, the board appointed Board Members Ed Newsome, Don Garrett and Billie Bosworth to a committee to study the annex.

Mrs. Bosworth told the board Monday night, "We can't sit on our hands any longer. It's a disgrace that the annex has been there this many years. It's deplorable."

MRS. BOSWORTH also recommended that the Palchett contact Head Start officials, who once used the building, and ask them to

Board President Paul Bargiel told Palchett to tell Head Start officials to have their supplies removed by today.

The board also approved contracting with John Hamm, who has done some blacktop and sealing work for the district in the past, to seal the playgrounds at Blair, Harris and Louis Baer elementary schools. Hamm also would seal areas at the Wendell L. Brown office building at 1707 Fourth St. Palchett recommended that the board put sealing of areas at the high school and middle school "on hold," although he said those areas might eventually need sealing.

RHADS TOLD THE board that the areas will eventually need resurfacing because of the delivery trucks traveling on the areas and because of the poor base under the playgrounds.

Garrett asked the board why no bids were solicited for the work. Palchett responded, "Hamm's offering us the same price as two years ago. I don't think we can beat it."

Hamm proposed differing prices on each area for a total of between $6,000 and $7,000, according to Garrett, who voted with member Ed Newsome against contracting with Hamm.

GARRETT TOLD THE Press-Record that the board has two policies concerning bid taking. "I think that (the cost of the project) was enough to send out for bids, but we do have another policy of giving (contracts) to firms within the school district."

"I probably would have voted to give it to Mr. Hamm, but my personal feelings, and Mr. Newsome's, were that we should have let out bids to get the best possible price for the school district," he said.

The board elected member Ed Warchol as a delegate to the Illinois Association of School Boards Convention in Chicago during the end of November. Mrs. Bosworth will serve as an alternate delegate.

THE BOARD voted to allow Palchett to attend the seventh annual superintendents' conference in Springfield, Ill., Sept. 12 and 13.

Damage awards against drunk drivers cannot be cancelled by bankruptcy

Newly-enacted changes in the federal bankruptcy code will prevent drunk drivers from escaping their debts under damage judgments awarded to their victims.

U.S. Senator Jack Danforth (R-Mo.), who sought the reform in bankruptcy law, welcomed its enactment as a victory for the rights of drunk driving victims.

The anti-drunk driving provision is included in legislation that reconstitutes the system of bankruptcy courts and makes other changes in bankruptcy laws. The bill is necessary because a 1978 reform of the bankruptcy system was overturned by the Supreme Court in 1982. Since then, the system has operated under temporary legislation. The new bill establishes the bankruptcy courts on a permanent footing. The legislation was signed by the president July 10.

"The bankruptcy code afforded an opportunity for scandalous abuse," Danforth said. "Under the code, drunk drivers who killed or injured innocent bystanders could escape civil damage judgments by taking bankruptcy."

"The change in the bankruptcy code will bar the cancelling of judgment debts. The message to drunk drivers is that they will be held financially accountable for their acts. The message to victims and their families is that Congress values their rights."

The tougher treatment of drunk driving under bankruptcy law was proposed by Danforth in 1982 and re-introduced in 1983.

Danforth sponsored comprehensive anti-drunk driving legislation which was enacted in 1982. The 1982 law provides increased federal funding to states that provide for automatic license suspension when a driver fails a breathalyzer test and take other steps to strengthen their laws against drunk driving.

Food stamp eligibility limits rise

On July 1, the eligibility limits for people on food stamps increased by about three percent, reflecting changes in the cost-of-living since last year, according to John W. Bode, deputy assistant secretary of agriculture for food and consumer services.

Under the new guidelines, the gross monthly income limit for a family of four will increase from $1,073 to $1,105. The net monthly income limit for a family of four will increase from $825 to $850.

To be eligible for food stamps, a non-elderly or disabled household's gross income must be no more than 130 percent of the poverty line. The household's net income (income after allowable deductions) cannot exceed 100 percent of the poverty line. Congress requires USDA to update these guidelines annually to adjust for changes in the Consumer Price Index, Bode said.

Following are the gross and net income limits for households of various sizes in the continental U.S., Guam and the U.S. Virgin Islands. (Alaska and Hawaii income limits are somewhat higher.)

Gross monthly income eligibility standards for a household of one is $540; for two, $728; three, $917; four, $1,105; five, $1,294; six, $1,482; seven, $1,671; eight, $1,859 and for each additional person, $189 more.

The food stamp program currently provides supplemental food assistance to nearly 22 million Americans.

Then later in 1983, taxpayers would receive a second bill based on the remainder of the actual tax bill for that year.

THE SECOND bill would be due once the tax cycle is completed and the county determines the exact tax rate.

Madison County currently bills taxpayers only once each year, and that bill is paid in two installments. Most counties in Illinois use the accelerated billing system, and Bowles

County studying tax cycle

By JIM WOODCOCK

Madison County is looking seriously at two solutions to the long delay in getting property tax bills to residents: an expansion of the three-member Board of Review and an accelerated property tax billing program.

Both proposals would be costly. At Wednesday's county board meeting, county clerk Evelyn Bowles and assistant state's attorney Marshall "Zeke" Smith told board members that an ad hoc committee will soon begin to study those methods.

THE AD HOC committee is comprised of various county and township officials, and its goal is to have a final recommendation to the county board by next month on how to get the tax cycle moving again. Bills for 1984 property taxes will probably not be mailed out until late August or early September, almost three months later than last year's billings.

"The situation is a serious one for a number of the various taxing bodies because they are having to issue tax anticipation warrants to pay their bills."

The accelerated tax billing method was supported Wednesday by Miss Bowles and in a resolution from township officials in Madison County.

Smith said an expansion of the Board of Review is almost a must because it has heard almost 1,000 objections from taxpayers this year.

The more objections heard, the longer it takes the board to complete its part of the tax cycle.

SMITH TOLD the county board that some sort of action must be taken soon so local taxing bodies can receive the tax dollars due to them.

Some taxing districts, particularly school districts, have been forced to borrow because the tax bills have not been sent out. Interest must be paid for this borrowing, further complicating things for the county's taxing bodies.

Officials from those various local taxing bodies met with Smith, Miss Bowles and several other county officials Tuesday in Edwardsville to discuss the delay in property tax bills.

THE AD HOC committee was formed at that meeting to explore the feasibility of various options available to the county and to review how other counties operate their tax billing.

The ad hoc committee is comprised of county Supervisor of Assessments Jim Barton, Board of Review Chairman Robert Harris of Granite City, county Director of Administration Mary Kane, Data Processing Center Director Patrick Morrison, Collinsville Township Assessor Pete Polite Jr., Alton Township Assessor George Campbell and representatives from the county board finance committee.

SMITH SAID hiring additional Board of Review members would be costly. However, he gave merit to a suggestion from board member Frank Vivod, Collinsville, that federal revenue sharing money could be spent on the additional Board of Review salaries.

An accelerated tax billing (also referred to as an estimated tax billing) would result in taxpayers receiving a bill in late April 1985, based on 50 percent of that taxpayer's bill from the previous year. That portion of the bill would be due June 1.

Then later in 1985, taxpayers would receive a second bill based on the remainder of the actual tax bill for that year.

THE SECOND bill would be due once the tax cycle is completed and the county determines the exact tax rate.

Madison County currently bills taxpayers only once each year, and that bill is paid in two installments. Most counties in Illinois use the accelerated billing system, and Bowles

Sasyk estimates regional sewers could cost $18 to $30 a month

Madison Mayor Mike Sasyk informed city council members Tuesday night of his estimated cost per month to the Madison residents if Landsdowne Sewage Treatment Plant customers switch to the regional sewer system, using Granite City Treatment Plant.

Madison residents now pay $5.85 a quarter and Granite City homeowners pay $18 per quarter.

The mayor projected Madison residents would be paying from $18 to $30 a month with a changeover.

"We must make a decision on this problem within six months," the mayor added.

Approval was given for the city comptroller to pay monthly bills in the amount of $27,694 and an additional $206 in bills for the Alpine Shopping Center.

There were 23 various permits issued for a two week period, John Dufko, building inspector reported. Two fires last week, one at 811 Washington St. and the other at 812 Jefferson St., almost at the same time, caused concern by Alderman Don Garrett, who asked the mayor if a reason or cause has been found for the fires that gutted both buildings.

Said he has been studying how it has worked with counties comparable in population to Madison County.

Miss Bowles said she immediately found the system can be costly. Because two sets of bills would be sent to taxpayers, postage, labor and material costs would automatically double.

BUT MISS BOWLES still supports the system. "Conceivably, an accelerated tax cycle would be justified for one year to bring the tax cycle back into sync," she said. "This should not be a year after year thing."

"All of these alterations will cost money. But if it is equitable, it's a small price to pay to get the tax cycle back on schedule and save the taxpayers some money."

The final day the county can implement an accelerated tax billing program for next year is Sept. 15.

Thus, Miss Bowles said, the county board would have to approve that program at its August meeting or call a special meeting sometime before Sept. 15.

Smith said an accelerated tax billing would probably cost the county about $120,000. He said there is no way the county can recoup any costs it incurs while implementing the procedure.

In the absence of Michael Macke, fire chief, the mayor called on Chief of Police Don Bridick, who said the Madison County Arson Squad had been called in and is investigating the causes of both fires.

The deplorable condition of Bissell Street was brought before the council by Alderman Charles Rockett, who asked just when work on the street will begin.

At the time that Bissell Street was used as a detour route while work on the Venice underpass was being completed, it was agreed that Madison would provide the material and Venice would furnish the manpower to repair the street.

The underpass section was closed July 11, 1982, and reopened to traffic in April of 1983. Since that time, there have been no apparent repairs made to the street, which was damaged by heavy traffic.

Funds for the road work will be provided by the state, as was agreed at the time the detour was deemed necessary and not the city of Madison. However, Mayor Sasyk said in answer to Rockett, "We have had some problems, but will get to the project as soon as possible."

Robert Robbins, superintendent of streets, requested and was granted permission to advertise for bids on a new truck-mounted combination water jet-rodder and vacuum catch basin cleaner machine, with the stipulation that he could also accept bids on a demonstrator combination sewer cleaning machine if the demonstrator is a 1983 model or newer.

He also was given permission to advertise for bids on three pieces of surplus city equipment: a 1958 case tractor, 1962 Ford van and a 1975 Buick Apollo.

Council members approved a recommendation from the zoning board to allow John Culbert to operate a sporting goods store at 925 Lee Ave., but denied the request of Mount, Neb. Baptist Church for a variance of the property line for steps at the rear of the church.

John Dufko explained the steps would put them across the zoning line and the architect agreed it was his mistake and is in the process of changing the location of the steps to conform with the zoning regulations.

If the steps are turned sideways to the present installation, this would give the church the necessary footage to be within the boundary, Dufko added.

ask that Sonneborn be given an opportunity to speak, but was rebuffed. On leaving the council room, Alderman Charles Rockett was angrily stating that there is no black representative in any administrative position in the city of Madison and black residents in the city do not have sufficient representation. At this point, he and the mayor's wife, Winnie, got into a heated debate on several issues.

REV. ROCKETT'S anger apparently stemmed from a request by the city of Madison that the West Madison area be assigned a police officer, since there are many more burglaries in that area and residents do not feel they receive proper service from the police department.

The council did agree to hire Steven Skoklo as a new officer on the police force, bypassing Richard Ballew, who holds the highest score of those taking the examination, and Brian Oestricher, second on the list.

When interviewed, Casper Nighossian, the city attorney, finally admitted there is a state statute that demands new police officers with the highest scores on the police commission's test be hired in order. When asked why the council agreed to the selection of the third man on the list, the local attorney just shrugged his shoulders.

AFTER the meeting, Mayor Sasyk was asked why Skoklo was hired before the first two on the list and replied that one of the top candidates does not live in the city, as required by ordinance, and the other one has a medical problem.

Ballew ranked first in the testing, Brian Oestricher, second, and does have an address on Angella Drive in Granite City.

City of Madison Ordinance 295 states that the police department "shall consist of a chief of police, assistant chief of police, four sergeants of police and seven police patrolmen, and such other patrolmen or special patrolmen as shall from time to time be appointed by the Board of Fire and Police Commissioners, the chief of police, or the mayor."

IN LIGHT OF the developments Tuesday night, Gary Marsala, a Madison police officer and secretary-treasurer for Unit 110, issued a statement Wednesday morning contending that Madison policemen are underpaid. "A Madison policeman with seven years on the force makes $7.91 per hour. The janitors of the Madison School District make over $10 per hour, who has the more dangerous job?" the statement asked.

The shortage of policemen on the streets at any one given time was pointed out as, Mrs. Josephine Garrett informed the council her home was burglarized three times and she could not get an officer to come to her home to take a report, except for one time.

Chief of Police Don Bridick answered the allegation, saying he had only one call recorded regarding the incident, although Mrs. Garrett contended she called on all three separate burglaries.

ALDERMAN GARRETT responded, "We in West Madison are without adequate police protection and I think now is the time to bring this up."

Mayor Sasyk agreed and, with the approval of council members, said a temporary special officer will be hired to cover the West Madison area until the problem can be solved.

Council authorizes sewer repair work

In a special meeting last night, members of the Granite City Council accepted an emergency force account from C.D. Peters Construction Co. to repair a sewer break at the sewage treatment plant.

According to Acting City Engineer Ed Schulte, the break occurred late last week on the southeast side of the treatment plant, where the raw sewage is pumped into the treatment plant.

Schulte said the force account is a process that is used when a condition is considered an emergency and there is no time for the formal bidding process. He said that, although the construction company gave him no price range, he estimates the cost of the work to be between $15,000 to $20,000.

Schulte said the company will begin working on the break today. He said C.D. Peters will stabilize the 36-inch force main by building a land bridge underneath of it.

The engineer said he is not sure of the reason for the break, but he theorized that this break has occurred from the high water table.

Gateway BPW hears Parents Plus plan

By VALERIE EVENDEN
of the Press-Record

Every year, 1.1 million teenagers in the United States between the ages of 15 and 19 become pregnant and 50 percent of teenage girls having live births keep their babies, the newly formed Gateway Business and Professional Women learned at a dinner meeting Monday night.

Thirty members and guests met at Charlie's Restaurant and heard Patricia S. Miller, parent education coordinator for the Parents Plus program, report that at least 500 teens in Madison County will have babies this year.

"People say, 'We don't have a teen pregnancy problem in Granite City.' But 50 teenage mothers in the Quad-City area will give birth within the next three months," Mrs. Miller countered.

Whether or not the girl is married, a teenage pregnancy is a traumatic experience. Not only for the prospective mother-to-be, but for her parents, the coordinator said.

It is to help such young expectant mothers and the girls who keep their babies after birth, along with the parents of teenagers faced with problems, that Parents Plus is designed.

Mrs. Miller works through Mental Health Services of Southern Madison County, maintaining offices at 2024 State St. She has a master's degree in Public Service Administration from Ball State University, and a bachelor degree in Business Administration from St. John's University in New York.

She was an instructor in business administration and psychology at Columbia College prior to joining the Parents Plus staff.

Married with two children, ages 4 and 7, Mrs. Miller has been coordinating the program since it was established here in January.

Peer support is provided through weekly group sessions, taking place at a nursery school in Granite City and a church in Madison, which affords young mothers an opportunity to share experiences, Mrs. Miller explained.

Such surroundings prove far more relaxing and enjoyable to the participants than meeting in a formal office setting, she contended.

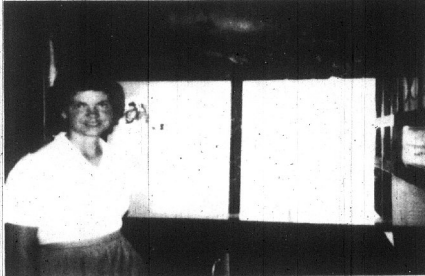

Twelve teenage girls comprise the Madison group and 13 attend the weekly sessions in Granite City.

Adult advisers, who frequently are volunteers and have experienced young motherhood themselves, attend the sessions to help the girls on a one-on-one basis, Mrs. Miller reported.

The women give support to the new mothers, often by merely answering relatively simple questions.

"How do you know when to take a baby to the emergency room?" "At what age should a baby be toilet trained?" and "Where do you go to get the best buy on diapers?" are some of questions heard at the get-togethers.

The sessions also break the feeling of isolation frequently experienced by young girls. As one new mother asked, "Aren't there any other 16-year-old mothers around?" and "Does anyone else feel the way I feel?"

POSTERS EXPLAINING the Parents Plus concept are displayed by Patricia S. Miller, parent education coordinator, at Monday night's dinner meeting of the newly organized Gateway Business and Professional Women's Club. The program is designed to help teen parents, between the ages of 13 and 19, adjust to parenthood with the assistance of various community resources, including volunteers.

There are quite a few 16 year olds with infants around and many other young girls in the same position feel exactly the way she does, the questioner discovers.

At the group sessions, the girls usually enjoy a meal, donated by one of several business firms, Mrs. Miller said.

Tacole Restaurant, Kentucky Fried Chicken, Clonko's Market and the Grand Cafe have all assisted with donations, she explained.

Humpty Dumpty Nursery School, Mount Nebo Baptist Church, New Salem Baptist Church, Bethel AME Church Nu Zeta Chapter of Beta Sigma Phi Sorority and Quad-City Church Women United also have contributed time and effort to the program.

Community response has been great and the program has received very positive feedback, Mrs. Miller said.

Volunteers are needed, however, and can be trained, if necessary.

Parents Plus also involves a literacy program that helps the young mothers return to school; child care; a day care program; information and support through parent education groups and home visitors.

Persons interested in learning more about Parents Plus may contact Mrs. Miller at 877-4420. Arrangements also may be made by groups for a speaker to attend a meeting and explain the project, the coordinator told the business women.

LaVelle Stephens, interim chairman, presided at the dinner meeting.

and children, Dave and Julie, Jeff Parton, Linda Roboff, Mark Cain and Vernita Dowling.

VENICE SCHOOL MEETING

Because of the lack of a quorum at last night's regular meeting and the deadline for passage of the budgets for the Venice School District, a special meeting of the Venice School Board has been called for 6 p.m. Friday, July 20, at the board office, Seventh Street and Broadway in Venice. The tentative budgets are expected to be passed at that time.

NOTICE OF ARCHITECTURAL/ENGINEERING SERVICE SELECTION

The Granite City Park District is informing all interested, experienced firms in the architectural or engineering avenue that the Board of Park Commissioners is interested in hiring a professional firm experienced in swimming pool design work.

These parties are urged to submit a resume/portfolio on their form explaining experience, professional background, clients served and other pertinent information that an individual feels needed in a selection decision.

The Board of Commissioners will then review said portfolios and select those firms they feel are qualified to do work that is needed, so that those selected can put together a presentation giving their proposals on the work that will be entailed. These presentations would begin on August 8, 1984.

All interested parties must submit six (6) copies of their portfolios to the office of the Director of Parks and Recreation, Benton and Oregon Streets, Granite City, Illinois, 62040 by 4:00 p.m. on July 24, 1984.

The Board of Park Commissioners of the Granite City Park District reserves the right to reject any or all portfolios and to waive all technicalities.

Volunteering to help others can be rewarding

Second in a series on United Way agencies written by volunteers.

What sort of person volunteers time and energy as a community volunteer? We asked this question of Janet Quanton, Tri-Cities Area United Way executive director. "I think you'd be surprised," she said, "at the variety of personalities and backgrounds among our volunteer forces." She suggested that several volunteers be interviewed to better see that no certain type of individual is more likely than another to be found contributing his or her time to community service.

The first person interviewed was Joni Karandjeff, a United Way volunteer for the past three years. She has been involved in volunteer activities since her high school days when she was a candy stripper. She also has been involved in various volunteer activities with her church.

She told us she was curious but skeptical about getting involved as a solicitor for United Way. When she was asked by a friend to help with the United Way campaign, she reluctantly agreed. "While working on the fund drive, I learned a little more about the need for their agencies and the different things they did for people and I got more interested," she said.

"The next year, I served on the Budget and Allocations Committee, where they decide how to allocate the money raised in the campaign to the various agencies.

"I was really impressed with the volunteers there — some had been around for years — they told me how the United Way agencies were set up, what they did for the community and more. I never saw myself as this type of person to get involved in this type of volunteer activity, but I really warmed up to the idea as people helping each other — down at the grassroots level — it just makes a lot of sense to me."

"Does she have any strong political or social philosophies that may have steered her toward volunteering?" "No, not really. I'm not a social activist or anything. It's just that the way things are organized seems so logical to me, relying on local, neighborhood resources for helping those in need. On one hand, we can benefit individually during a crisis or emergency when we need assistance and, on the other hand, we benefit at the community level, too. Everything we do helps to make this a better community to live in."

"The papers tell us that the federal government is trying to put the responsibility for many programs back on the local level. I think this cuts back on waste and inefficiency. The United Way is very effective this way more than 90 percent of the money people donate to them goes directly to the agencies themselves. I think that's a really good record," Mrs. Karandjeff said.

Overall, what kind of experience has she had? "All in all, I've really enjoyed doing this. The people I met, the friends I've made are all super people. I've learned a lot about my community and other communities and about people in general. I feel good about the fact that I'm doing something in return for the good life I've had here. It was a pretty big step, going from thinking about the community's needs and then actually doing something about it, in my own little way. It's a good feeling. I'd recommend it for anybody."

This year, Joni Karandjeff is serving as co-chair of the Budget and Allocations Committee and working in the campaign with her husband, Drew, as joint leaders of the business and commercial account.

GC Council approves animal, parking ordinances

The keeping of animals, both wild and domestic, was the subject of two city ordinances passed by the Granite City Council Tuesday night. Council voted to cite residents for keeping animals if those animals are causing "noxious odors and an accumulation of defecation." Council also approved an ordinance prohibiting the keeping of wild animals, defined as undomesticated animals that would normally be found in a zoo or in the wilderness.

In other action, council members voted to prohibit vehicle parking on the north side of Niedringhaus Avenue from Adams Street west to the railroad tracks. Council also annexed 1701 Bremen Ave. following a request and petition by the resident, Ottilio Valencia.

Isabelle Yartan approached the council Tuesday night concerning traffic accidents on Niedringhaus Avenue at Route 3. Mrs. Yartan said her sister, Rose Hagopian of 619 Niedringhaus Ave., had a tractor trailer truck run through her yard last April after the truck was unable to make the curve on Route 3 and swerved on to Niedringhaus Avenue. Mrs. Yartan said she was also representing Mrs. Hagopian's neighbor, Mary Veres of 619 Niedringhaus Ave.

City officials agreed to contact the Illinois Department of Transportation to see if the speed limit could be reduced in that area or if concrete barricades could be erected along the median.

The council discussed a zoning ordinance and the way city employees handle complaints after Connie Stroder of 1506 Cottage Ave. told council that Building Inspector Mike DeRuntz visited her home and told her brother-in-law that he had 45 days to vacate the premises.

Mrs. Stroder said her sister and brother-in-law were living with her while trying to find a home in Granite City. DeRuntz was absent during the meeting, but City Inspector Emerald Davies said that he and DeRuntz visited the Stroder residence after receiving a complaint. "When we get these complaints, we've got to answer them," he said.

Councilman Mike Modruskie questioned the policy of asking people to vacate a residence. "We have no right to throw people out of their homes," he said, adding that the zoning ordinance allows one or more persons to inhabit a single-family dwelling if they are related by blood, marriage or adoption.

"They want to come to our city," Modruskie said. "We shouldn't be chasing people out. The way some of our city employees are handling things is ridiculous," he contended.

City Attorney John Papa, who was asked if Mrs. Stroder was violating a city code, told council, "If they're related to you, you can have 20 family members living with you."

The council also approved the purchase of a POW MIA flag to be flown at the township hall and voted to allow a neighborhood bicycle parade sponsored by the Good Shepherd Vacation Bible School Wednesday.

SPRAY-PAINT WALL AT BELLEMORE BAKERY

The same names spray-painted during the weekend on the roadway at Edgewood Avenue and Johnson Road, along with other graffiti, were painted on the east wall of Bellemore Bakery, 1735 Ponton Road. It was reported at 7:20 a.m. Tuesday by Leo Lipa.

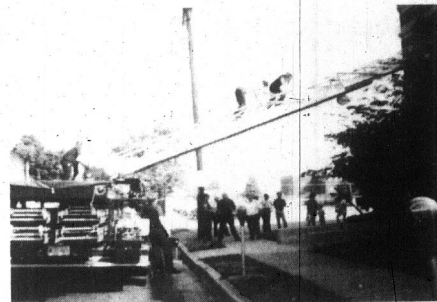

Vandals also broke a plexiglass window in the dairy bar building, adjacent to the bakery, Lipa said.

Police interviewed two youths in connection with the painting incident at Johnson and Edgewood and also at a confectionary store on Maryville Road. Two stop signs and a T-intersection sign also were painted over by the vandals.

TV, CANNED GOODS TAKEN

Willie McCauley of 1209 Logan St., Venice, told police recently that someone broke into his mobile home and took a 12-inch television set, some canned goods and four boxes of cereal. Entry was made through a window on the west side of the home.

Fire drill at library

The Granite City Fire Department conducted a fire drill late last week at the Granite City Public Library. Library employees were instructed in using aerial and ground ladders to exit the building and were then given an opportunity to practice climbing down the ladders.

Firefighters conducting the drill were Capt. Jerry Wallace and Engineer Terry Shure, assisted by Mike Nesbit, engineer, and Lenny Wilson and Matt Gasparovic, pipemen.

This was the second instruction session conducted for library employees by the fire department. On June 7, Wallace and Shure spoke to employees about safety procedures in the event of a fire and also demonstrated proper use of the library's fire extinguishers.

Dialogue on drugs

A column by the Granite City Chemical People Task Force

The Cannabis Sativa plants grow wild in most parts of the world. The plant, green in color, can range in height at maturity from the Cannabis Ruderalis variety of one to two and one-half feet (found primarily in Russia) to 18 feet for the Cannabis Sativa (most commonly found in the United States). The Cannabis Indica plant grows from three and one-half to four feet in height (mostly found in India).

There is scientific evidence that supports claims that each variety is a separate species but all are generally considered a sub-species of the Cannabis Sativa.

The leaflets may vary within each species but Cannabis Sativa normally has seven leaflets, Cannabis Indica has nine and Cannabis Ruderalis has three. Cannabis Indica has a broad leaf, Cannabis Sativa has a narrow leaf and Cannabis Ruderalis is oval, but all have serrated (sawtooth) edges. The stalks are fluted.

The male and female plants are similar in appearance until maturity, when their flowers differ. The male plant produces prominent flowers which shed pollen freely. The female flowers grow amidst a profusion of small leaves and stems at the tip of the plant.

All three species contain tetrahydrocannabinol (THC), the active principle with hallucinogenic properties. Cannabis Indica produces the most THC and Cannabis Ruderalis the least. The female plant also produces more THC than the male plants, with the highest concentration being in the upper small leaves, bracts and flowering tops of the plants.

The dosage of THC contained in marijuana is extremely variable and unpredictable. The potency of dried, leafy marijuana depends upon a number of variables, including the genetics of the plant, the soil and climate in which it was grown, when and how it was harvested, its sex, how it was prepared, the parts used and how it was stored.

The chemistry of cannabis, a natural and organic substance, is extremely complex. Its chemistry also changes from the fresh plant, to the dried preparation, to the inhaled smoke by burning. Dried cannabis contains 421 known chemical compounds, including 61 chemicals known as cannabinoids. Cannabinoids are specific to cannabis and include Delta 9 THC.

THC varies radically across the spectrum of marijuana preparations: hemp and wild U.S. cannabis having less than 5 percent; cultivated marijuana having 5 to 5 percent; sinsemilla having up to 6 percent; hashish 8 to 14 percent; hash oil from 15 to 40 percent and hash oil crystals up to 60 percent.

Sinsemilla comes from the Spanish words "sin" (without) and "semilla" (seed). Sinsemilla is the potent flowering top (excised of leaves) of the unpollinated and seedless female marijuana plant. By keeping the female plants unpollinated, the THC concentration increases in the resin. This method of cultivation has been used for centuries in Asia but became popular in the United States after the drug experiences of American soldiers in Vietnam in the 1960s.

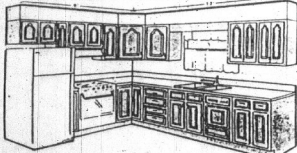

Hashish is the dried cake resin produced from the tops and leaves of the female cannabis plant. It comes in many different shapes, but is often in little rectangular tablets. The tablets can be soft, crumbly, or hard and may be from light brown to black in color.

Hash oil is a highly refined oily cannabis extract. It is thick and can be dark brown, yellow, reddish-yellow or clear in color. The oil can be crystallized to make the THC concentration higher.

Anyone having questions or comments about drug or alcohol abuse may write to Dialogue on Drugs, Post Office Box 278, Granite City, Ill., 62040. The task force meets on the second and fourth Thursdays of each month at the Brown Recreation Center.

Trimpe acting provost of GCC; two assistants are named

By GARY SCHNEIDER
Press-Record Editor

Wilbur R. L. Trimpe, former Madison County superintendent of schools and a former president of Lewis and Clark Community College in Godfrey, has agreed to serve as acting provost of the Granite City Center of Belleville Area College. It was announced Tuesday afternoon.

He will fill the vacancy created by the decision of Provost Frank Gornick to move to Bakersfield, Calif., to accept the position of dean of students at Bakersfield College.

IN ADDITION to selecting Trimpe to lead the one-year-old Granite City Center, the BAC Board last night appointed two assistant administrators. Ray C. Moddrell will begin his duties as director of student development and counseling July 23. The board also voted to appoint Dr. Harold G. Johnson, director of instructional services at GCC as of Aug. 21. Both are currently with Belleville Area College's main campus in Belleville.

Dr. Bruce Wissore, president of BAC, said he is happy to have the three men heading GCC. "We don't want a power vacuum there. We want somebody to charge. We are happy that Wilbur Trimpe has agreed to step in."

Applications for the permanent GCC provost's post are being accepted by Wissore through Nov. 31 and it is hoped the position can be filled soon after that date. "We want the best qualified candidate," Dr. Wissore said.

GCC's FIRST FULL year has been "very rewarding, both in the number of people who came to the students and in support by the community. We hope to flesh this thing out. It's growing like crazy," he said.

Initial enrollment last fall greatly exceeded the board's most optimistic expectations and created a demand on BAC to fulfill the educational needs of the area. Dr. Wissore said of the restructuring of GCC for next fall. "The volume in the first year at GCC was demanding. Now they (the students) are receiving what they are demanding and deserve it."

He pledged that GCC will be ready to adequately handle any number of students next fall, the first year that the college will have sophomores as well as freshmen.

"WE ARE LESS concerned with numbers than service," he stated. BAC Board Member Avery Schermer of Granite City added, "We've already proved the numbers of students are there. We've got the numbers to survive. Now we can concentrate even more on quality."

Moddrell, who will take on the job of student development and counseling, came to BAC as director of student activities in 1975 and has been a counselor since 1981. He is originally from Kansas and received his bachelor of business administration and masters of student personnel services in higher education and counseling from Emporia State University in Emporia, Kan.

Moddrell also has taken additional post graduate courses in counseling. He served at Macalester College in St. Paul, Minn., as residence hall director and a counselor for three years before coming to BAC.

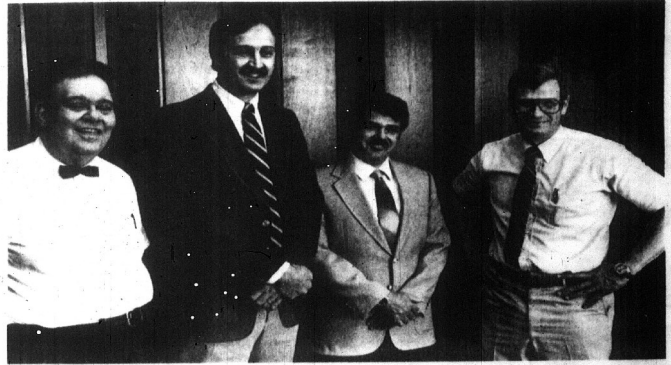

HE AND HIS wife, Chris, a registered nurse at Belleville Memorial Hospital, have two sons, Adam, 5, and Alex, 3 months old. Dr. Johnson came from a law enforcement background. He is originally from St. Louis and received his associate degree in law enforcement at St. Louis Community College and his bachelor of science degree in the administration of justice from the University of Missouri at Normandy. He then earned dual masters degrees in Human Relations and administration of justice at Webster College and earned his doctorate in Education at St. Louis University.

WILBUR R. L. TRIMPE

He was a St. Louis police officer from 1963 through 1973 and came to BAC in 1973 to serve as instructor of the administration of justice program. In 1979, he was promoted to director of the police academy at BAC, one of only five certified programs in the state.

DR. JOHNSON and his wife, Doris, have four children, twins Christopher and Christine, age 16, Stephen, 15, and Harold, 14. They reside in Belleville.

By ALAN L. GERSTENECKER
Sports Editor
of the Press-Record

GRANITE CITY — Aligning coaching positions for the coming school year, Granite City Unit School District approved the hiring and rehiring of several coaches Tuesday night for the coming fall sports season at Granite City High School.

Patton

Yates

more time with his family. In addition to his athletic director's duties, Patton will teach four health classes, a study hall and coach sophomore baseball. GCHS' football coach for the coming season will be Ron Yates, 38, has been an assistant football coach in the district for 15 years under five varsity coaches. Formerly assisting both Granite City South's Jerry McKeehan and Granite City North's Tom Wyrostek, Yates replaces Wyrostek after one year as GCHS' mentor.

Yates' contract, incidentally, is for one year while Wyrostek is on exploratory leave.

OTHER FALL coaching assignments the board acted on Tuesday included Gene Baker, soccer, Mel Bunting and Dave Ames, soccer assistants; Dick Harmon, girls' tennis; Russ Chappell, golf; Wilma Schulze, volleyball; Connie King, assistant volleyball; Bob Stegmeier, John Toncoff, Gus Lignoul, Bryan Wilkison, assistant football coaches and Joseph Haefner, assistant cross country.

Two more assistant football coaches' positions and the head cross country coach's position will be named at a later date, Fedora said.

As for the AD's position and the football coach's position, Fedora said it was necessary to act on those as soon as possible. In each case, Fedora said, he had two applicants for the positions.

For the AD's slot, Fedora said Patton and former Granite City North Athletic Director Bryan Wilkison had applied. But because Wilkison is already coaching two sports — freshman basketball — Fedora said he recommended Patton.

"Both are equally qualified for the position," Fedora said. "But because of Bryan's other duties Greg was the logical choice."

FOR FOOTBALL coach, Fedora said the decision was reached in a similar way. In addition to Yates, Len Lybarger was also a candidate. But because of Yates' lengthy coaching experience within the district, the board decided on him.

"In each case, there was no major difference between both candidates," Fedora said. "All four candidates are very capable. It was just a matter of four qualified persons with just two vacancies."

As eager as both men are to get the two vacancies, both did not apply before considering the near monumental tasks affiliated with those positions.

"My wife, Janis, and I discussed it at some length before I decided to apply for the position," Patton said. "Basically, the position hasn't changed from when Roger (Smith) left it, but we decided to make a go of it."

Patton said after discussing the position with his wife, "Besides, I'd probably kick myself in the fanny later if I didn't apply for it."

For Patton, who graduated from Granite City High in 1966, getting the AD's position is like achieving another step in a sports lover's dream.

"I've never really worked anywhere else or did I want to," Patton began. "After graduating from Illinois State University in 1970, I was hired here the July after graduation. It's sorta like fulfilling a dream."

ALTHOUGH becoming the Warriors' AD may be a dream come true, Patton is realistic enough about the position to realize that the position will be demanding.

"I know I'm entering the same unchanged situation that Roger left, and that's probably the biggest drawback because I know from him what the demands are. But the more I think about it the more I can see a lot of positive aspects to it as well."

"I've had the position less than 24 hours, and I can see more and more positive things all the time," Patton said Wednesday.

One positive aspect Patton cited was the coaches at GCHS. "Granite City is blessed with some fine coaches and that alone should help make the job easier. But, I do envision those coaches taking a more active role in their respective sports, such as arranging bus schedules and notifying both our and the other school's office about cancellations," Patton said.

"It'll take a concerted effort by all the coaches, especially as we re-enter the Southwestern Conference this fall," Patton said of the athletic director's duties. "It'll take me a while, too, to get back into the swing of things."

YATES, also a graduate of GCHS, too is well aware of the task ahead of him as the football Warriors re-enter the SWC.

"I'm really excited about getting the position, but too you have to be realistic enough to know just what we've got ahead of us. I'm not going into this with my eyes closed," Yates said.

"When I graduated in 1964, Granite City was a member of the Southwestern Conference and it was one of the premiere conferences in the state, and I still believe it is today. All you have to do is look at the perennial powers in it. Take East St. Louis for example. They're the reigning 5A state football champions. It's not going to be easy."

Instead of looking immediately down the road, Yates is looking beyond, around the next bend.

"First what we've got to do is try to get the kids to believe in me and in football in Granite City again. I've got to get them to believe in me and that Granite City can have a fine football team again."

Part of the way in which Yates plans to do that is to involve his athletes in an extensive weight training program. And as for his football philosophy, that's simple.

"We're going to mix it up. You've got to have a good balance of running and passing to be successful. But I won't know what kind of team we'll have until I see it. Personnel will dictate whether we run or pass."

Paddlers' swimmers secure win in final event

By PAULA WISE
of the Press-Record
EDWARDSVILLE — Going into the final event of Tuesday's meet with Montclair Swim Club two points down, Paddlers' Swim Club knew it had to have an exceptional performance from its 15 to 18-year-olds' 200-yard-freestyle relay team.

Since a first-place finish in the event meant seven points for the winning team and none for the loser, the results of the entire meet depended on how the relay team finished.

Swimming the 200 yards in 2:02.80, Diane Oliver, Laura Jenness, Linda Kuberski and Patti Martin combined to not only win the race, but set a record in the process.

PADDLERS' swimmers went on to win the meet 315-310. Unfortunately the diving team did not first as well as they dropped their first meet of the season 38-31.

"Before the race they all got together in a little huddle and I could hear them saying 'If you do this, we can win it,'" said Paddlers' swim coach Celeste Sonnenberg. "Then they got in there and did it."

"They've swam together since I started here, and you can always depend on them to come in and do something fantastic," Sonnenberg said of her winning foursome. "Thank God they swam last."

"WE WERE up by two, down by two, up by seven, down by one. Nobody was really leading the whole thing for more than three or four races."

"I never pay too much attention to the score though. When it's that close it always comes down to the last relay anyway."

In addition to the relay team, Sonnenberg mentioned Mike Geske, Patti Martin, Janet Niles Su Chon Tulyasathien and Mike Fussell as turning in excellent times in their events.

Geske and Martin each turned in record times. Geske set the record of 26:37 in the 50-yard freestyle. Martin had her record-setting performance in the 100-yard butterfly with a time of 1:09.25.

This Weekend

Chouteau Island site for ski tourney

CHOUTEAU ISLAND — Water skiers from several states, some as far away as Florida, will compete in a water ski tournament here this weekend.

Sponsored by the Chain of Rocks Recreation Corporation, the ski tournament will begin both Saturday and Sunday at 7 a.m. at Chouteau Island Lake and is sanctioned by the American Water Ski Association.

Tournament water skiing is a popular sport which has recently evolved into a professional sport with the advent of the "International Water Ski Tour." Water skiing will also be an Olympic sport in 1988.

CONTESTANTS will compete in SONNEBERG and her swim team went into the meet prepared to see very stiff competition. Although they had not swam against Montclair this summer, several Granite City swimmers compete in the winter against Edwardsville at the Edwardsville YMCA.

"Before the race they all got together in a little huddle and I could hear them saying, 'If you do this and you do this, we can win it.' Then they got in there and did it."

Celeste Sonnenberg
Paddlers' swim coach

"I hadn't seen them swim, but I knew they had lost to Summer Haven by six points less than we had. So I knew it was going to be a close meet," said Sonnenberg of her match with Montclair.

"Some kids swim really well and beat kids they had swam against all winter last year and hadn't beaten. So that was a real boost," she said.

The Paddlers' coach felt that several different swimmers contributed to the victory, but surprises did come in the end of the age groups.

"It was a combination of 8 and under, 11 and 12 boys, 13 and 14 boys, and the 15-18 girls," Sonnenberg said in regard to her team's winning point totals. "Those age groups really came through in the end."

HOWEVER, overall Sonnenberg wasn't sure if the win would benefit or hinder her team as they prepare for next Tuesday's final match of the season against Summersport. Although the match could be used as a tremendous confidence builder, Sonnenberg hopes her team will not let down before Tuesday's meet.

"I think Summersport is in third right now, but they have some good swimmers. It's going to be a tough, close and last meet. We're going to have to go guns blazing to that one too," stated Sonnenberg.

While Sonnenberg is looking towards next week's meet, Paddlers' diving coach Gary McCormick is still contemplating her team's setback Tuesday night.

IN THEIR first defeat of the season, Paddlers fell to what McCormick termed "a deeply, more experienced" Montclair team. The loss put the area teams' record at 4-1.

"They were really nervous coming in," said Coach McCormick after her team's loss. "They're was a lot of pressure on them coming in tonight, and I think they just broke under the pressure."

"We definitely didn't dive our best tonight," McCormick said. "I just hope we've got the bad one over with and we can save our best for next week."

UPON entering the meet, McCormick had predicted that her team might suffer their first loss of the season, so the defeat came as no surprise.

"I knew that they were filled up in their age groups and we weren't and that hurt us," said McCormick.

"Some of the kids blew some of their dives that normally don't do that sort of thing and that really cost us, she added."

One bright spot for the Paddlers' team was the performance of Joe Wallace. Wallace who has just recently begun to dive competitively finished first in his age group.

OTHER first place finishers included Mike McCormick in the 13-14 year old boys and Heather Crane in the 13-14 year old girls. Paddlers had four second place finishers and four third place.

In addition to the meet next week, the Paddlers' team must now begin to prepare for the July 28 diving championships. This meet will be held at Summersport Swim Club.

Sheridan selected to carry Prairie Games torch

"The most important thing in the Olympics is not to win but to take part, just as the most important thing in life is not the triumph but the struggle."

— Baron Pierre de Coubertin
excerpt from his address to world leaders on why the ancient Greek games should be revived.

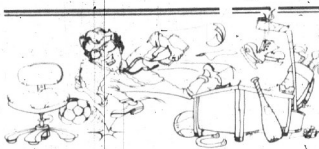

Somehow there seems to be almost poetic justice that this year — 1984 an Olympic year — Illinois would begin a mini-Olympics of its own, the Prairie State Games.

Following last night's opening ceremony of the Games in Champaign-Urbana, competition began today at 8 a.m. During the four-day sports spectacular, athletes will vie for top titles in sports varying from archery to wrestling with championship competition concluding on Sunday.

Granite Cityans have perhaps their best chance of emerging champions in soccer. Granite Cityan Ruben Mendoza, one of the Southern Region coaches, said the soccer teams are "very strong and have an excellent chance of bringing home the championship."

In all, forty-four local athletes will compete in the four soccer teams representing the Southern Region. One athlete on the Southern Region boys' scholastic (high school) team an All-American who played at Granite City High last season.

Matt Sheridan, certainly one of the most highly recognized soccer players ever to grace the Warrior red and black uniforms, is that All-American.

Voted the best prep soccer player in Illinois following the Warriors' 1983 season, Sheridan's honors are nearly as long as the soccer field on which he plays.

At 5-foot 11-inches, Sheridan was named All-American in February when he was named to the Parade Magazine's All-American Soccer National High School Soccer Team.

A sweeper back for the Warriors, he led his team in goals scored last season from his defensive position.

In addition to receiving All-American honors, he was invited to compete in last month's Army Soccer Classic at the United States Military Academy at West Point.

It's the combination of those honors which netted Sheridan his latest honor — being selected as one of two bearers of the Prairie State Games' Torch during last night's opening ceremonies.

Vergil Fletcher, Collinsville basketball coaching great and Southern Region chairman of the Games, selected Sheridan for the honor. Citing former Warriors' athletic accomplishments, Fletcher's selection of Sheridan was an easy one.

Sheridan was informed by telephone earlier this week of the honor. At 18, he's the only athlete of 3,000 representing the Southern Region to receive the honor.

The other torch bearer, the one who shared the limelight with Sheridan, is from Northern Illinois.

No matter what else Granite Cityans may accomplish in the first Games, few can be as memorable as striding your way through a stadium packed full of people carrying the flame which literally ignites the whole ceremony.

Yes, it's quite an honor.

The schedule for the Games' soccer competition is as follows: Thursday

Southern Men's Open vs. Pioneer at 6 p.m.; Southern Women's Open vs. Pioneer at 8 a.m.; Southern Men's Scholastic vs. North Shore at noon.

On Friday: Southern Men's Open vs. Wilcox at 6 p.m.; Southern Women's Open vs. Blue Gray at 8 a.m.; Southern Men's Scholastic vs. Blackhawk at 10 a.m. and Southern Women's Scholastic vs. Wilcox at noon.

On Saturday: Southern Men's Open vs. Windy City at 4 p.m.; Southern Women's Open vs. Blackhawk at 10 a.m.; Southern Scholastic Men's vs. North Shore at 8 a.m. and Southern Scholastic Women's vs. West Central at noon.

On Sunday, third-place contests begin at 8 a.m. and championship games begin at 10 a.m. for Men's Open, Women's Open and Scholastic Men's competition. The Women's Scholastic third place game and the championship game both begin at noon.

All soccer games, incidentally, will be played at Urbana High School Stadium and the surrounding high school fields.

Wrestling competition will be held at the Champaign Armory while diving competition will be held at the IMPE Building Indoor Pool.

Wizards' magic defeats Spanky's

By AL BARNES

GRANITE CITY — The streaking 7-Up Spanky's baseball team, now 30-13 with two-thirds of the season completed, ran into a road block Tuesday night at Granite City High's Varsity Field, falling to defeat, 11-9.

It was, in effect, the old story of overconfidence and complacency. The opponent for the fourth time in this campaign was the brand new Sauget Wizards, an aggregation Spanky's trampled three straight times early in the season, even though the losers are right up there battling it out for first place in the prestigious Mon-Clair League and possessed a win-loss record of 26-18 going into the game.

SPANKY'S playing manager Bill Stolle knew that his team faced a possible defeat for two, maybe three big reasons. Former members of the Spanky's, Bobby Hughes, battering Jim Greenwald and Granite City semi-pro and prep North) standout Mike Robertson, all are now key players on the Sauget team.

That trio, along with the rest of the Wizard team, were burning up about the way Spanky's had manhandled them three times earlier in the season.

Even after his Spanky's charges jumped out in front against Sauget, taking a 6-0 lead in the second inning, Stolle was uneasy and worried. He whispered his worries to two members of the press as he walked back to the bench from his first base coaching position.

FANS who overheard him couldn't figure out why he was worried since Spanky's had their No. 2 pitcher, Gerry Cerkens (6-2) working on the mound. Chinking for the Wizards at that point was a comparative youngster, Todd Teeter, formerly a Belleville East star.

The Spanky's batters did, in fact, look like they owned young Teeter as they rapped out five hits and posted six runs during the first two innings.

Stolle's concern focused on the two ex-Spanky's stars, Greenwald and Hughes, now pacing the Sauget team. Three years ago, in as subtle a manner as possible, the 7-Up Spanky's leadership, managed by Eldon Warfield and Pat Peterson, had suggested that Hughes and Greenwald seriously consider either stepping down or cutting back their playing time. While hurt by the suggestion, Greenwald and Hughes took the big hits in stride and move on, joining Ed Gasaway's now defunct St. Louis Browns for the 1983 season.

EARLY in 1983, Spanky's mauled the Browns by winning three in a row, but when the regional National Baseball Congress' Missouri state tournament time rolled around, the Browns, led by Hughes and Greenwald, struck back with a fury only the spurned can vent. Greenwald, over the journey games, racked up an amazing 19 hits in 23 times at bat.

When Gasaway disbanded his Browns because of poor health, Hughes and Greenwald organized the Sauget Wizards, sought entry and were accepted by the Mon-Clair League, where they are currently placed second.

TUESDAY night, Hughes and company struck back in the fourth inning and scored four runs to cut Spanky's lead to 4-3. Not to worry, though, as the 7-Up Spanky's promptly responded with a trio of runs, increasing their lead to an apparently safe 9-4 advantage.

Hughes, Greenwald and company, however, never gave up and bounced back with four runs in the top of the sixth to cut their deficit to one run. Suddenly, Sauget's young pitcher, Teeter, became tough and permitted only two hits in the remaining five innings, one in the fifth and one in the ninth.

MAXWELL, Hughes led off the ninth with a single and tried to steal, but was cut down by Keith Hoskins' bullet peg to second. The Wizard's catcher, Tom Hurg, was safe on an infield hit. Lance McCord, who had homered to lead off the sixth, singled, putting runners on first and second. Don Nicholson singled to right, and a throwing error by Stolle permitted all three to score, moving Sauget out in front to stay, 11-9.

Tonight Spanky's plays the Sotolar Tuckpointers at Hoppe Field in Edwardsville. Game time is 7:30 p.m.

On Aug. 17

Luncheon to benefit park leagues

Granite Cityans will have two opportunities to honor one of its favorite sons, Dal Maxwell, on Friday, Aug. 17.

In addition to Granite City Community Night at Busch Stadium, which has already been slated for that evening, Granite Cityans will be able to attend a luncheon that afternoon at Maxwell at Charlie's Restaurant.

Maxwell, a member of the St. Louis baseball Cardinals' World Series teams in 1962 and 1967 and now a coach with the Atlanta Braves, will be in St. Louis as the Braves begin a three-game series with the Redbirds.

MAXWELL, who grew up and played Little League baseball in Granite City, is perhaps best known by Cardinals fans for his clutch hit in the seventh game of the '67 World Series which sparked the Redbirds to a Series victory over the Boston Red Sox.

In addition to the two World Series that Maxie spent with the Cardinals, he was later traded to the Oakland Athletics of the American League and went on to shine for A's during their heyday in the early 70's.

TICKETS for the luncheon are $20 and may be purchased at the Tri-City Area Chamber of Commerce office, the Financial Planning Centre, 4201 Nameoki Road and the Press-Record Sports Desk. Tickets for Granite City Community Night at Busch Stadium are now available and may be purchased at the Tri-City Area Chamber of Commerce, the Financial Planning Centre, the Press Record Sports Desk and area grocery stores. PERSONS seeking ticket information or need further information about either the luncheon or the Granite City Community Night at Busch Stadium should contact Mark Goldenberg at the Financial Planning Centre at 877-0888.

Gray KO's 13 MAC avenges earlier loss to Alton

By ALAN L. GERSTENECKER
Sports Editor
of the Press-Record

MITCHELL. — When a team is as hot as Alton's Junior American Legion baseball team, there isn't much that can stop it. But at Mitchell Athletic Club's Field Wednesday night, MAC hurler Tim Gray found one thing that would stop Alton and once he did, he never let up until it was over and the game was won.

Until last night's contest, Alton Post 126 was clipping along at 17-13 pace, not an outstanding record, but they've been hot and were looking for their ninth consecutive win of the season.

Mitchell on the other hand, now 18-5 and one of the leaders in the division, was looking for two things — a division-sustaining victory and revenge. MAC dropped a previous matchup with Alton 7-5 on June 17.

8th enter Gray. "He came to me after hurting his shoulder and said, 'I'm alright now and I'm going to pitch against Alton.' Merz said of Gray, 'He wanted this one personally.' Merz obliged.

Gray, a right-hander, must've wanted it pretty bad as he sent down 13 Alton batters on strikes, the most strikeouts he's managed in a single game this season. It also ties the season team record set by his cousin Eric Gray.

It was his finesse on the mound which ultimately frustrated Alton and led to MAC's 4-1 victory. Mixing pitches well, which included a biting slider, Gray gave up just five hits and four walks, two in the seventh inning as he grew weary.

ON THE other side of the field, Alton's Tad Holt allowed MAC nine hits — three in the first and third, one in the fourth and two in the sixth. It was in both of its three-hit innings when Mitchell managed its four rallies.

In the first inning, Greg Nemeth reached when a bloop single fell in to shallow right field. Tim Gray reached on an error by Alton's Don Stephens to put runners at first and second base.

But, Nemeth was picked off trying to steal third as Alton's catcher, Tim Holt, fired a shot to third base in time for Tim Gleason to put the tag on him. Gray, however, successfully stole second.

THEN STEVE Davis, who's been torrid with the bat and is now batting cleanup for MAC, swatted a triple to the right center field gap, easily scoring Gray from second.

With two outs, Fred Becker picked up MAC's second RBI of the inning when he scored Davis from third on a single to short right field.

MAC cruised along on its two-run lead until the third inning when it again cashed in three hits for two runs.

Mitchell's Tim Gray and Bill Moore led the inning off with back-to-back singles. Gray beat out an infield hit and Moore slapped a shot to center field. Both base runners advanced an extra base when Alton's Rick Watts bobbled Moore's shot to center field.

WITH runners on second and third and no outs, it appeared Mitchell would surely convert at least one baserunner in for a score.

However, as the inning wound down, Alton's Tad Holt retired both Davis and Becker, getting Davis to pop out to first and Becker to ground out to the mound.

Just when it appeared Mitchell may strand Tim Gray and Moore, designated hitter Eric Gray plugged a two-RBI single down the left field line to score the pair and increase Mitchell's lead to four, 4-0.

The score remained unchanged until the seventh when apparently weary Tim Gray's pitches became inconsistent.

FOR GRAY it was either feast or famine. After striking out the first batter in the inning, he walked the next, struck out the third, walked the fourth, allowed the fifth, Chris Norick, to single in Watts for Alton's sole tally and then struck out the sixth batter of the inning to end the game.

Mitchell will meet the other Alton Junior Legion team, the Alton Optimists, today at 6 p.m. at Mitchell Field.

Wins TC's Modified Feature 'Lucky' Utley defies superstition

GRANITE CITY. — Tom Utley was in the right place at the right time, Friday, July 13 at Tri-City Speedway. Utley watched as his adversaries became victims of misfortune.

The Burger King, John Seets, led the opening nine laps on the half-mile and then climbed the outside retaining wall between turns three and four immediately halting his evening's racing, while Bo Smith, winner of the past five straight Modified features, dropped back due to mechanical gremlins.

"Atom Bomb." Tom (Utley) led the final six laps to claim his first 1984 Tri-City Motor Sports Club, the Pennzoil Modified feature. Utley also snapped the string of feature victories (five) held by Bo Smith.

Finishing second was Marty Smith, "Superfly" Bo Smith steamed in third, C.C. Corbin's Snoopy Special was fourth and Scott Geaschel rounded out the top five. Leading all but the initial quarter-mile lap of the Pennzoil Limited Sportsman feature was race winner, Steve Quartermouse. His first feature win of 1984 at the Gateway Fast Track capped off a hat trick for the driver of Bill Vinyard's "Double Duce" (car #22) Camaro. Quartermouse topped both of his preliminary events, the heat and the dash.

In a photo finish for the runners up spot, taking second by mere inches was "not" Rod Bailey, Joe Mediotra finished a heartbreaking third; Bobby Gault, fourth and the Hutton Ford Special driven by Steve Meyers, Sr. finished fifth.

The 1983 Rookie Champion of Tri-City Speedway's Street Stock class, Kunz, made his 1984 debut on the quarter-mile an evening to remember, by winning the Pennzoil Street Stock main event. And that wasn't an easy job either, he had to stay in front of Sharon Rhoades.

Rhoades, starting from the back of the pack, charged through the field tracking down Kunz, but fell short of passing him before the checkered flag was saved. Behind them at the finish were Mel Boder, Bob Schnupper and Tim Snell.

David Martin evidently isn't very superstitious, he drove a green car (a Chevelle), numbered 13, under a full moon on Friday the 13th of July, but he did. There was no bad luck in the cards for Martin only Lady Luck because he won the Street Car Eliminator trophy in just such a vehicle on just such a night.

Hunters' inputs may change seasons

SPRINGFIELD Public comments are being sought by the Illinois Department of Conservation regarding a proposed change to begin upland game hunting in southern Illinois 12 days later than in the north. Upland game includes quail, rabbit, pheasant and Hungarian partridge.

Mike Conlin, chief of the DOC's Division of Fish and Wildlife, explained that the change has been requested by many southern Illinois hunters who believe the normal starting date is inappropriate for their area due to the typically hotter temperatures experienced in early November.

The proposed change would create a southern upland game zone including all the counties south of or bisected by Interstate 64. Under the proposal, upland game hunting would begin this year in the southern zone on Nov. 22, Thanksgiving Day, and conclude Jan. 13. The northern zone season would begin 12 days earlier, on Nov. 10, and conclude Jan. 6.

Many southern Illinois hunters have lobbied such a change for several years, claiming that a dog's ability to smell out game is hampered by the heat and green grass aroma, Conlin said. Another concern was that many quail were still "squealers," or immature birds that had not yet reached full growth during the first few days of the traditional season.

DOC administrators and wildlife biologists were present during recent public meetings held in Mt. Vernon and Vienna to get views from hunters.

"The Department's attitude was that we could certainly accommodate the hunters if their suggestions proved biologically sound and did not adversely impact on the natural resource," Conlin said. "This proposed change reflects that thinking."

"The danger later in the season is that we might harvest too great a percentage of next year's breeders," he said. "This won't occur with the proposed season because the season length in the southern zone will be reduced by five days, and the inclusion which allows us to close the season early if deemed necessary. The overall hunting pressure should be reduced."

Bass clubs to aid fisheries

SPRINGFIELD—Department of Conservation fishery biologists are hoping that a new voluntary reporting program aimed at bass tournament participants will provide a low-cost source of data invaluable in making fishery management decisions.

Beginning this year, selected bass clubs throughout the state were asked to "field test" new tournament record cards by recording their catch of largemouth bass during club tournaments, explained DOC Fish and Wildlife Chief Mike Conlin. The actual statewide monitoring effort begins in 1985.

Once the statewide bass tournament is implemented, DOC fisheries biologists hope it will provide a statewide catch rate and individual lake catch rates for bass.

Master Casters seek members

The Master Casters of Granite City are seeking new members. A bass club, they hold their monthly meetings on the first Sunday of each month at 4 p.m. at the Granite City YMCA.

Members will be eligible to attend seminars and also compete in tournaments for prizes.

Membership costs are $10 initiation fee, and $3 monthly dues. Tournament fees are $2.

All applicants joining by Aug. 5 are eligible for the Aug. 11 night tournament at Gillespie Lake. Persons interested in joining should contact John Moore at 877-8368.

Acts 1:25 "Peter therefore was kept in prison, but prayer was made without ceasing of the church unto God for him."

Herod the King has already killed James the brother of John. Now Peter was imprisoned and death was sure to be his fate.

The time was come for serious prayer. The church dropped all for mourning. God's people began to cry out. This was not the time for choosing the right word, nor for proper fiction of the voice. Peter would die. The church played without ceasing unto God!

Perhaps you are in a crisis situation. Sick, afflicted, out of work, marriage on the rocks, etc. If so, then it's time to pray. Tell God what you need out of your heart. If you are sincere that sincerely, will move God quicker than any words from lips can form.

God saw to it that Peter was set free. God will answer your prayers too. You don't need experience to pray. Just a need that only God can supply.

Why not try prayer today!

Rev. Second Baptist Church marks 66th anniversary

Members of the Second Baptist Church, 2100 Illinois Ave., will observe the church's 66th anniversary with a schedule of special activities and services Sunday.

Church members say Sunday school will be conducted at 9:30 a.m., with the worship hour beginning at 10:30 a.m. A basket dinner will be served at 12:45 p.m. and a 2 p.m. service will follow. Church training is slated for 6:30 p.m., and an evening service will follow at 7:30 p.m.

According to church officials, Second Baptist Church was organized on July 21, 1918, as the West Granite Baptist Church. Meetings were conducted for approximately five months at Washington School on West 20th Street.

The church organized with 33 charter members, under the direction of Rev. John Phillips.

On Dec. 20, 1981, the church moved to 2022 Illinois Ave., and became a member of the East St. Louis Baptist Association. The next year, the church moved again to the corner of 21st Street and Missouri Avenue.

On April 6, 1929, church members voted to construct a basement building on the corner of 21st Street and Illinois Avenue, which is the present location of the church. Church members met in the basement until the auditorium of the present building was completed in 1949, with a dedication ceremony on Oct. 30 of that year.

The name of the church had been changed to Second Baptist Church on March 1, 1929.

On Sept. 9, 1956, groundbreaking services were conducted and the present educational building was built.

The present church membership is 914, and church officials say plans are underway to erect a 37-foot steeple on the church.

The church has had 16 pastors, with the present Rev. Carl R. Watkins joining the church Aug. 7, 1978. Previous pastors were John Phillips, July 1918 to Jan. 1926; W.F. Cox, Jan. 1926 to June 1927; H.W. Daily, Aug. 1927 to Nov. 1929; H.C. Croslin, Dec. 1929 to Nov. 1931; C.A. Wise, Dec. 1931 to March 1933; C.W. Miller, April 1933 to Aug. 1934; Charles Recklein, Aug. 1934 to Sept. 1936; John Gill, Sept. 1936 to Nov. 1938; Robert Knight, Jan. 1939 to Jan. 1941; W.R. Evans, March 1941 to Aug. 1942; R.D. Tolliver, Nov. 1942 to Dec. 1945; Jack DeVore, Jan.

The 33 charter members as listed in the original minutes were Mrs. Geneva Bilderbach, Miss Frances Howell, Miss Opal Howell, Mr. and Mrs. Logan Biley, Mr. and Mrs. W.E. Howell, Mrs. James Bosley, Mrs. Anna Cook, Mrs. E. James, Mrs. Every, Mrs. Ella Every, Miss Louise Every, Miss Ruby Lambert, Mr. and Mrs. B. McCain, Mrs. Laura Pink, C. Moore, E.B. S.S. Cyril and Methody to host diocesan conference

The parish of St. Cyril and Methody Eastern Orthodox Church will host the 21st annual conference of the diocese this weekend, July 20-21.

Together with the priests of the respective parishes of the diocese and the lay delegates, there will also be present His Grace, Bishop Kyrill Yoncheff who, in just a few weeks, will celebrate the 20th year of his consecration to, and service in, the episcopacy.

Bishop Kyrill resides in both the Pittsburgh area and Toledo to be able to fulfill his responsibilities as both the spiritual and administrative head of the diocese, with parishes throughout Western Pennsylvania and the Midwest. He is a member of the Synod of Bishops of the Orthodox Church in America, which is now an autocephalous Church. An autocephalous church is a local and territorial church that is "self-headed" (the literal meaning) or self-governed as to its internal life, particularly guided by the Synod of Bishops at the head of which is either the metropolitan or patriarch of the local territorial church.

The Orthodox Church is a communion of the various autocephalous churches throughout the world, full united doctrinally, sacramentally and spiritually. Metropolitan Theodosius Lazar, the current head of the Orthodox Church in America, was at one time the parish priest of St. Cyril and Methody in Madison.

For the parish of St. Cyril and Methody - now almost four years in its new church at 4720 Maryville Road - this will be the first time for hosting the Annual Diocesan Conference. After the meeting of guests on Friday evening, the conference will begin with the Divine Liturgy on Saturday morning, July 21, at 10 a.m.

The conference general meeting at which the life of the various parishes of the diocese is discussed, will be held throughout the course of Saturday afternoon followed by the service of Great Vespers. On Sunday morning the Pontifical Divine Liturgy will be served at 10 a.m. with His Grace, Bishop Kyrill as the head celebrant. There is a tradition that when the bishop first enters the church to celebrate the Divine Liturgy, he is greeted at the door by the parish priest and other clergy with the Cross, and is then presented with bread and salt by the president of the parish council as the traditional sign of hospitality. The Divine Liturgy will be followed by a grand banquet held in the church hall. Anyone in the wider community who would like to attend any of the liturgical services is welcome. For further information contact the Rev. Steven Kostoff at 931-6465.

Choosing a Healthy Kitten

Kittens are made to be irresistible. You're supposed to take one look at it, pick it up and take it home with you. If you have a choice, however, you'd probably just as soon take one home that's in good health.

In looking over a litter of kittens, it's good to keep the following advice in mind. Examine the one you're interested in carefully. Check to see that the eyes are clear and free of tears or other discharge. Check the mouth to make sure the gums are free of sores. A thick glossy coat is a good sign. Also check under that delicious fur for a firm and muscular body, free of lumps and rashes. The physically healthy kitten is like a wise active, bright, and responsive.

Then, once your new kitten has passed this initial inspection, it's a good idea to take him right over to your veterinarian for a more thorough examination. If there is anything wrong with your new kitten, prompt medical treatment has the best chance of working. In any event, it is good for the veterinarian to become acquainted with your "baby" and take care of routine health-care needs.

Veterans respond to Agent Orange survey

Response to the Vietnam veterans Agent Orange Survey has been quite good according to Andrew Gitchoff, Commander of Chapter 53, of Disabled American Veterans. Survey forms are still available on weekdays from noon to 6 p.m. at the DAV, 1417 - Nineteenth St., in Granite City, he said. He also announced that Joe Heffery has been appointed to the membership committee, and that Lee Reid has been appointed to a service officer's position by Harold Bleckman, Department of Illinois Commander.

Larry Lockhart reported that Charles Ousley died since the last meeting and that John Korak is still confined to Jefferson Barracks VAH. He was asked by Gitchoff to elaborate on Bleckman's appointment of Lee Reid to service officer and he said that Reid will be provided an office at John Cochrane VAH and he will be responsible for servicing the needs of Illinois Veterans confined to both Veteran Administration Hospitals in St. Louis. He will have regular office hours, but they are not set yet since they want them to be convenient to both the veterans and Reid.

Joseph Heffery announced the membership of Chapter 53 on June 30th was confirmed by National Headquarters to be 410. Our quota was revised to 444 later in the year by National Headquarters and we did not meet that quota, as predicted.

Donations were approved for the Granite City Council of Senior Citizens and to the Tri-City Chamber of Commerce Crime Prevention Committee.

Gitchoff appointed Joseph Heffery and Lawrence McQuire to a committee to plan and execute the initiation of all members who have not previously been initiated. October is the desired target date for this ceremony, he added.

Lunch was prepared and served by Paul Cooper.

University Ambassadors conduct campus events, answer questions

By SANDY HAAS

Did you know that the painted rock in the Morris Quadrangle at Southern Illinois University at Edwardsville used to stand 6 feet high? Or have you ever noticed that the interior of Building 11 at the university is painted in fall colors and Building 11 in spring colors? And do you know why there is no Building 12?

You would probably be aware of these facts only if you had been on a campus tour with the University Ambassadors of SIUE.

THE UNIVERSITY Ambassadors is an organization of students who serve as campus hosts for university guests. Their duties include giving campus tours and hosting campus events.

Besides giving information concerning painted rocks, a University Ambassador informs prospective and incoming students about campus housing, book rental, registration and other information helpful to campus newcomers.

During a typical campus tour, the guide, Ambassador Jeanmarie Castiglione, an 18-year-old junior from Bend, even told her guests about the Career Planning and Placement Office and suggested that students could contact that office in their junior year to begin their job search.

THE AMBASSADORS gave 244 such tours in 1983, involving 2,188 persons, according to Sue Haller, Ambassadors' tour secretary. They welcomed an additional 19,315 people through events they hosted on campus.

The campus functions the Ambassadors host annually include events such as Commencement and Honors Day. They also assist with the Senior Fair, A Very Special Arts Festival, Madison County Teachers' Institute, SIUE Open House, Senior Olympics, Madison County Career Day, Elderhostel and numerous other special events.

The Ambassadors recently welcomed the Illinois Board of Higher Education to campus and gave board members guided tours of the new Sam M. Vadalabene Center for Health, Recreation and Physical Education.

THEY ALSO SERVED as hosts at SIUE's first Founders' Celebration, which was highlighted by the dedication of the Vadalabene Center. For this event, the Ambassadors' distinguished guest list included Gov. James Thompson, Sen. Sam Vadalabene, Chancellor Kenneth Shaw, President Earl Lazerus and Dorothy Morris, wife of the late Delyte Wesley Morris, founding president of the university.

An ambassador, according to Webster's definition, is "a special representative; an official messenger with a special mission."

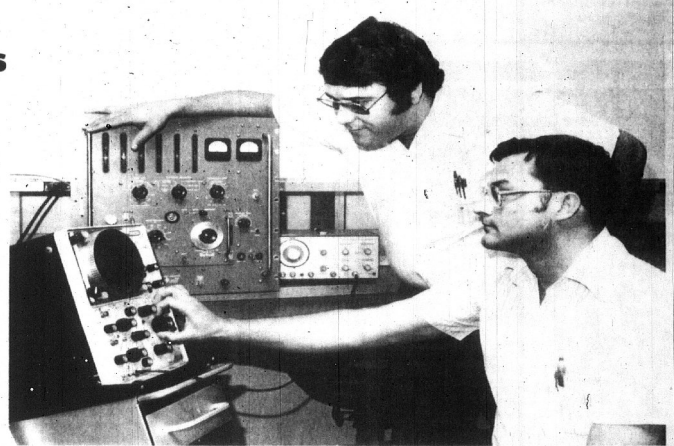

The University Ambassadors' mission, as described in their organization's constitution, is to further pride in the University and to provide services that will better the relationships with neighboring communities and facilitate the growth of the university.

THE AMBASSADORS fulfill this mission as student emissaries for the SIUE campus, according to Annette Mulvaney Graebe, director of the University Information Center and associate professor of speech communication. "They create a great deal of good will inside and outside the university," she said.

So if you were ever wondering why someone put those "stick wind chimes" in the Goshen Lounge, where the wind never blows, your University Ambassador tour guide would have told you that those "sticks" are a piece of artwork created by the Japanese artist, Yasuhide Kobashi, entitled the "Plumbob."

And if you are ever a campus guest wondering where to dine for lunch, an incoming student needing to be pointed in the direction of the advisement office, or a seasoned student who still can't seem to find the library, visit the University Information Center. A University Ambassador will answer your puzzled look by saying, "Welcome to Southern Illinois University at Edwardsville. May I help you?"

OSCILLOSCOPE ADJUSTMENT. Don Guldage of Granite City adjusts dials on an oscilloscope in a Southern Illinois University at Edwardsville School of Engineering laboratory as he analyzes wave forms from a function generator. Joe Moffatt, Edwardsville, watches the patterns forming on the screen. Both students are seniors in electrical engineering at the university.

SIUE requests $1.8 million for programs in FY-86

New state resources totaling $1.8 million are needed for program requests included in the Resource Allocation and Management Program (RAMP) planning documents for Fiscal Year 1986 at Southern Illinois University at Edwardsville, approved by the SIUE Board of Trustees for submission to the Illinois Board of Higher Education (IBHE).

The only new program requested is the master of science, major in computer science, for which $192,580 is needed.

FOUR PROGRAM expansion requests and nine special analytical studies are presented and described in the plan. The program, special activities and resources requested include: master of business administration at Rend Lake, $62,000; bachelor of science, major in computer science, $165,754; bachelor of science and master of science in engineering, $124,000; summer graduate program in medical-surgical nursing, $42,920; school of business salary enhancement, $62,982 and school of nursing salary enhancement, $56,268.

Labor and management support, $50,000; school of business outreach activities, $93,500; university/schools interaction, $87,800; data processing and computing, $297,894; master of science, major in management information systems, $137,000; institutional renewal, $250,000; and special deferred maintenance list, $248,000.

University officials explained that a long range planning and budgeting process, systematically tying allocation to institutional objectives, is being implemented. The planning documents address a series of program and procedural matters which the university will deal with in the coming year, and new program developments under consideration for the next five years also are included.

THE PROGRAM review section includes a schedule for academic programs to be reviewed over the next five years, a statement about programs previously reviewed, the results of all program reviews conducted in 1982-83, a review schedule for research and public service units, a report on external reviews, a schedule for support unit reviews and the results of this year's support reviews.

SIU to save money by prepaying bonds

Savings of several million dollars may be possible through a revenue bond prepayment program authorized by the Southern Illinois University Board of Trustees last week.

The board approved an application to the U.S. Department of Education, requesting the opportunity to prepay at a discount all of the outstanding principal of $12,775,000 of University Revenue Bonds Series A through G 1978, issued to the Department of Housing and Urban Development.

SIU SYSTEM officers said that under the Department of Education's current formula, this outstanding principal could be prepaid with approximately $7 million. The prepayment would be financed from the sale and issuance of new university revenue bonds and from the use of current sinking fund and reserve account balances on hand.

Final rules concerning the prepayment program are not expected to be published by the Department of Education until late July or early August but the deadline to apply for a discounted prepayment is Aug. 1.

In a related matter, the Board of Trustees approved retention of a managing underwriter and a bond counsel to look into the possibility of financial advantages to the university by advance refunding of all or part of the remaining outstanding revenue bonds now held by other bondholders. The consultants would be asked to assist with developing the most effective financing program for the SIU funded debt system.

THE BOARD approved selection of the firm of Becker Paribas to serve as managing underwriter and the firm of Chapman & Cutler to serve as bond counsel for the refunding proposal, with fees to be contingent upon the actual sale of bonds.

THE LAW AND YOU

BY RICK REED

Attorney At Law

The Fourth Amendment guarantees that a person accused of a crime will be free from "unreasonable searches and seizures." If police obtain evidence illegally, that evidence will be "excluded" from use at the trial. This "exclusionary rule" came into play seventy years ago as an attempt to do away with police misconduct. For instance, if police suspect that a person possesses drugs and they break down his door without a warrant, the evidence seized will be suppressed. This means that the drugs will be excluded from use at trial and the case, therefore, will be dismissed.

Many Americans have claimed that this rule often allows vicious criminals to get off on technicalities. Some have expressed the opinion that it rewards criminals for the mistakes of police officers. Proponents of the exclusionary rule, on the other hand, argue that it protects citizens and makes sure that the government stays within the limits of the Constitution.

An example of the application of this rule can be found in a recent Illinois case, where in 1978 a police officer arrested a driver for speeding. The officer and the suspect returned to the squad car, and the policeman called the radio dispatcher for a driver's license check on the defendant. The dispatcher informed the officer that there was a warrant out for the arrest of the defendant for possession of cocaine. The officer placed the defendant under arrest, read him his Miranda rights, and removed drugs from the suspect's shirt pocket.

In this case, the police officer believed in good faith that the warrant was still valid when he arrested the defendant. It later turned out that the warrant had been recalled by a Judge prior to the traffic stop, and merely had not shown up on the police computer. The Court found that the officer therefore had no probable cause to arrest the suspect and threw out the evidence found in the defendant's pocket, since the arrest was illegal.

On July 5, 1984, the United States Supreme Court in a 6 to 3 vote carved out a narrow exception to the exclusionary rule. This decision said that police who conduct a search, believing that a defective search warrant is in fact valid should not be penalized by having evidence they seized barred from use at trial. Had this case been decided prior to the above example involving the seizure of cocaine, this evidence probably would not have been thrown out.

Givot opposes steel tariffs, quotas

Steven I. Givot, Libertarian Party candidate for the United States Senate, presented his weekly award for monumental stupidity in government. The award, known as the "Big Screw," is given to the person who has most grossly demonstrated that the federal government is running wild and out of control. The award, a six-inch long screw, symbolizes what taxpayers are getting from government. Givot awarded the Big Screw to the International Trade Commission (ITC) for its recommendation of quotas and tariffs on various steel products. The ITC plan calls for limiting imports to between six and 32 percent of domestic consumption. The action was in response to a petition from Bethlehem Steel Corp. and United Steelworkers of America. Givot blasted Bethlehem Steel and the steelworkers' union for "using the ITC to rip off American consumers to fatten the company and its workers. There is no reason to buy imported steel other than the fact that it is more cost competitive. By enacting quotas and tariffs, the cost of steel used in millions of products will be forced higher artificially. As the cost of steel goes up, manufacturers using it will also raise their prices. In the end, every consumer in this country will pay through the nose for this gift from the ITC to the steelmakers and steel workers. The effect of similar government actions in the auto industry are well known. The so-called

Board raises Kraus' car allowance

Members of the Granite City School Board approved a motion Tuesday night to raise the interim superintendent of schools' car allowance from $850 a year to $1,200 annually. Board President David Partney told board members that Frank Kraus, formerly an assistant superintendent, agreed to keep the same salary he had been receiving for his former position if he was given a higher car allowance. Partney said Kraus would be driving a lot more, because he is, in effect, doing two jobs.

The car allowance raise came after Kraus formally announced that he will retire from the district July 1, 1985. Kraus said there have been a lot of rumors circulating that he might retire before July of 1986 and that he wanted to "clear the air."

Kraus has been appointed interim superintendent through June 30, 1985. He recommended that the board form a committee soon to consider applicants for the superintendent that will replace him.

POWs-MIAs honored

Sidney M. Ford, director of the St. Louis Veterans Administration Medical Center, has announced that the medical center will host a ceremony honoring soldiers who are Prisoners of War (POW) or Missing in Action (MIA) at 10 a.m. Friday on the lawn area in front of Building One at the Jefferson Barracks Division.

The event is in conjunction with a proclamation signed by President Ronald Reagan designating July 20 as National POW—MIA Recognition Day.

Our POWs and MIAs have earned a very prominent place in the hearts of all Americans, because of their selfless devotion to duty and unflinching courage," Ford said. "We must not forget or fail to honor those who have served this country so faithfully."

Ford is inviting the public to attend the program and join with the medical center staff, volunteers and patients in this recognition of those who endured the unknown on sacrifices on behalf of this country.
